JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Rep. Mills gets gas firm favors; tax czar gets $6,000 jet flight; Nixon threatens dramatic draft move

Lodge Steps Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge has resigned as chief U.S. peace negotiator at Paris, the White House announced today and will not be immediately replaced.

In addition, New York attorney Lawrence E. walsh also is resigning simultaneously as deputy head of the U.S. delegation at the Vietnam negotiations.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said he had no idea when a successor to Lodge would be selected. In the meantime, the acting head of the U.S. delegation will be Philip C. Habib, a career diplomat who has been Lodge's senior adviser.

The resignations of Lodge and Walsh, accepted with regret by President Nixon, became effective Dec. 8.

Ziegler was asked whether the uncertainty about when Lodge may be replaced was a calculated effort to downgrade the Paris talks.

"It's a matter of selecting a successor," he replied.

The White House made public exchanges of letters between Nixon and the two envoys in which both Lodge and Walsh complained about the posture of the Communist negotiators in Paris.

Wrote Lodge in his letter, received Wednesday:

"I strongly support your efforts to negotiate an end to the war. You have left no stone unturned. It is sad that the other side has flatly refused to reciprocate in any kind of meaninful way."

Lodge said he was quitting "because personal matters at home require my attention."

Walsh cited another reason for his decision:

"In view of the manner in which these meetings are now being conducted by the other side, no purpose would be served by my continuing to hold this office. If these conditions should change, you may be sure that I shall be glad to help in any capacity."

Lebanon Caught in Squeeze

BEIRUT (AP) — Little Lebanon, with its 2.5 million people, has long known the key to survival in the explosive Middle East is strict neutrality. But maintaining that neutrality is proving difficult.

Palestinian guerrillas, bent on regaining territory held by Israel since the 1967 Arab- Israeli war, recognize their best chances for attacks against Israel are through Lebanon's southern frontier, bordering on the Jewish nation.

And Israel has made it clear that attacks launched from Lebanon bring automatic, and deadly, retaliation strikes against the neighbor to the North.

Lebanon first tasted the fury of Israeli retaliation in December of 1968, after guerrillas, who had flown from Beirut to Athens, bombed and machine-gunned an Israeli airliner in the Greek city. Israel's response was a devastating commando raid on the international airport of Beirut, all but wiping out Lebanon's fleet of commercial airplanes.

While Lebanese politicians squabbled and governments fell and were reformed, the guerrillas took advantage of the situation, operating with impunity from Lebanese soil, and as winter deepened, the guerrillas left their mountain strongholds in the northeast and penetrated further into Lebanon, occupying several villages.

Israel has charged that some 50 raids into its territory has been launched from Lebanon since last Aug. 1, and reprisal attacks increased in number and intensity.

Syria, Lebanon's neighbor to the east, has made it clear from the start that it supports the efforts of the Arab guerrillas to get back to Golan Heights territory, which it lost during the 1967 war. Recently, Syria tightened the squeeze on Lebanon by closing its border to Lebanese army troops attacking guerrilla concentrations across the border.

Adding to the pinch is the dual religious character of Lebanon. The country is about half- Christian and half- Moslem, and alliance with more militant Arab neighbors is by no means unanimously desired in Lebanon.

Although Arab guerrillas have boasted they could increase their operations within Lebanon at will, recent clashes have shown the Lebanese army is capable of rising to the occasion.

The guerrillas failed to capture the key mountain town of Rashaya, which dominates Israeli border. Although they held a major portion of the northern port city of Tripoli, and thousands of Palestinian refugees seized control of their camps, the guerrillas failed to spark the general uprising they had predicted.

Now, other Arab governments are no longer sure the battle by the guerrillas for the right to operate from Lebanon is such a good thing. A major concern is a highly visible disintegration of Arab unity.

An agreement reached with the aid of the Nasser government in Egypt finally ended the 10 days of civil strife in Lebanon, granting the guerrillas the right to operate only under certain conditions, including prior permission from the Lebanese government before significant operations.

Israel certainly was not expected to welcome the agreement, and there was some question as to whether the Arab guerrillas, if held to it strictly by the Lebanese, would honor their host's conditions.

Apollo 12 Sure to Be Top in Science Value

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With a bull's - eye landing, treasure chests full of carefully selected moonstones, pieces of sophisticated experiments deployed on the lunar surface, Apollo 12 is sure to contribute more to science than any previous space flight.

Only one major objective remains- taking close- up pictures of three possible landing sites for future missions - before astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean can head home knowing they did all they set out to do. They'll do that Friday.

Apollo 12's landing just 20 feet from the edge of a crater in which Surveyor 3 is located clears the way for future missions to more rugged terrain, where smaller safe landing zones exist but where scientists say the most knowledge can be gained.

The theory is that volcanoes or meteor impacts have tossed material from deep inside the lunar crust onto the surface in these areas. If so, rocks collected from these rugged sites could harbor numerous secrets about the moon's interior and thus possibly provide more information about the origin of the moon, the earth and the solar system.

During two excursions outside the Intrepid lander craft, Conrad and Bean collected an estimated 80 to 100 pounds of rocks far more carefully selected than those picked up on Apollo 11- including some that may have been tossed to the site when the huge crater Copernicus was created 200 miles to the north.

Knowledge to come from this treasure chest of rocks will only be learned after long months of studying the specimens, "but we're sure we'll learn something, I can tell you that," one scientist predicted.

Pieces of Surveyor 3 snipped off by Conrad will give engineers valuable information about how well man- made materials wear in the lunar environment. This type of data can prove useful in designing future spacecraft or permanent habitats to house scientists on the lunar surface.

Five scientific experiments deployed on the surface by Conrad and Bean have already begun to unravel secrets of the moon. Sources said one of them, designed to measure any gas particles above the surface, has shown the moon may have an atmosphere one- millionth that of earth.

Data was recorded on a seismometer experiment when Conrad rolled a rock down a nearby crater, proving the device should be able to do what it is designed to do: determine the structure of the moon's interior by listening for moonquakes or sonic signals produced by falling meteors.

Lodge Counters Red War Crime Charges

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge told the Vietnam peace talks today that a great majority of the American people supports President Nixon's efforts for peace.

Lodge spoke after the Viet Cong angrily denounced the United States, charging that the reported American massacre of civilians in two villages of Quang Ngai Province March 1968 were only part of the story of U.S. "war crimes."

Lodge told the 43rd session of the conference that the United States is willing to consider any timetable Hanoi may wish to offer for a mutual withdrawal of all non-South Vietnamese forces.

Such a timetable could see American troops withdrawn from Vietnam more quickly than the President's "alternative plan" for pulling out U.S. forces if there is no settlement, Lodge said.

"President Nixon will not be pressured into departing from the course which he has set," Lodge warned. "Those who live in authoritarian countries should try to understand that last week's events in Washington were a demonstration of the exercise of the right of free speech. You should also understand that the evidence shows that the great majority of the American people supports the President's effort for peace."

Linkup Reunites Astronauts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 12's moon explorers blasted off the bleak lunar surface today, chased their mother ship 3¾ hours and linked up safely for the long journey home.

Charles "Pete" Conrad Jr. and Alan L. Bean, the third and fourth humans to land on the moon, skillfully guided their lunar ferry Intrepid through a series of rocket firings to catch Richard F. Gordon Jr. in the command vessel Yankee Clipper.

The two ships maneuvered into position and then gingerly moved together to lockup noseto-nosejßthe first time they had been secured since Intrepid started the descent to the moon Tuesday night.

The linkup climaxed a busy day in which Conrad and Bean trekked a mile across lunar wastelands and carefully collected a treasure for science.

Conrad and Bean were to transfer into the command cabin after assembling their containers of lunar rocks and other gear they want to bring home.

Ninety minutes after they blazed away from the moon they spotted their fleeting target, the command vessel Yankee Clipper, racing about 140 miles ahead and 15 miles above them.

"I got you visually, Yankee," Conrad radioed.

"Roger," came the reply from Richard F. Gordon Jr., who has been orbiting on a lonely vigil since Intrepid started the trip down to the moon Tuesday night.

Right on schedule at 9:26 a.m. EST, a burst from the engine at the base of their cabin section vaulted Conrad and Bean off man's second lunar outpost, this one on the Ocean of Storms.

"Man, this is a hot machine," Conrad exclaimed as the tiny Intrepid blasted then off the moon after a stay of 31 hours, 32 minutes. "What a nice ride."

Seven minutes later they swept into an orbit ranging from 10 to 54 miles above the surface, 300 miles behind Gordon, orbiting at 65 miles.

An hour after liftoff, they fired their jet engines to move into an orbit at an altitude of about 50 miles. On the lower path they required less time to circle the moon and gradually closed in on their quarry, flashing through the lunar skies.

On the way up, the astronauts reported a master alarm flashed on briefly, but they could detect nothing wrong.

Conrad said he "got to watching that problem" and allowed a slight overburn of 1¼ seconds, which he was able to trim out.

Conard and Bean had to catch Gordon in a 3¾-hour chase to get back to earth. The lunar craft was not designed to take them home.

After executing a complex series of maneuvers, they were to hook up with the command ship at 1:05 p.m.

Conrad and Bean will transfer into the command ship and later today the astronauts plan to deliberately crash Intrepid on the moon, about 15 miles from Apollo 12's base, to excite a moonquake device left on the surface.

Then they'll spend an extra day in lunar orbit, photographing future landing sites before starting back to earth Friday. Splashdown is scheduled for 3:57 p.m. Monday in the Pacific Ocean.

Shortly before liftoff, Mission Control assessed Intrepid's systems and reported: "You're go to cast off," using a nautical term for the all-Navy crew.

"Liftoff and away we go," Conrad exclaimed as the tiny craft rocketed off the moon.

The four-legged descent stage that lowered them to the moon Wednesday served as a launching pad today and was left behind on the moon, along with five scientific instruments and unneeded boots, tools, trash and other items dumped there by the astronauts.

The moon voyagers locked themselves inside Intrepid early today after competing their second four - hour scientific safari on the cratered Ocean of Storms.

Tucked inside with them are 80 to 90 pounds of carefully documented rock samples from at least six craters, soil dug from a foot beneath the moon's surface, hundreds of photographs and five pieces clipped from an unmanned Surveyor spacecraft that soft - landed on the moon 31 months ago.

Also there was a lot of the fine black powder that adhered to Conrad and Bean as they walked the surface.

"Man, is it filthy in here," Conrad reported. "We must have 20 pounds of dirt and all kinds of junk. Al and I look like a couple of bituminous coal miners. But we're happy."

Conrad also reported that he had fallen down one time while outside. When Mission Control asked if either of them had knelt down to retrieve rocks, he replied: "I'd take the shovel and stick it in the ground and just do an arm pushup and lean down and pick a rock from the ground with my other hand. I fell over once out there and Al picked me up. It's no big deal."

He added that both did kneel at times to gather samples.

Hoover Panel Urged to End Duplication

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today called on the State Reorganization Commission to recommend the abolition of "governmental entities that have outlived their usefulness."

"I hope you can search out inefficiencies, overlapping and duplication for elimination. We all want Missourians to have full value for every tax dollar spent."

The governor's speech to the commission, Missouri's third "little Hoover Commission," was read by his press secretary, Jerry Bryan. It was the commission's second meeting.

It organized Oct. 17, choosing former Circuit Judge D.W. Gilmore, now of Kansas City, as chairman, and State Rep. H.F. (Hoot) Holland, R-Sheridan, as vice chairman. Gilmore also formerly served in the Senate.

The governor told the commission state governments are growing faster than the federal government or the general economy.

As a result, he said, "in Missouri, as well as other states, agencies have been piled upon agencies until we have built cumbersome, unworkable structures that stand in the way of attaining the state's goals.

"We are hampered in taking full advantage of technological advances such as data processing, improved communications and scienific management techniques."

He said the result is that the chief executives of too many states have direct supervision over too many agencies.

"In the case of Missouri," Hearnes said, "the lines of authority run directly to the governor from almost 90 agencies and institutions. A chief executive of the state could not confer with and supervise all those who report directly o him if he devoted all his time to it."

The governor called on the commission to recommend "far more than just organizational reshuffling."

He said the commission should consider such things as regrouping agencies in related fields, establishing lines of authority and responsibility and replacing commissions with single administrators where that would improve operations.

Hearnes said much of that could be done by executive order but some of the long range changes would have to be achieved by the Legislature.

Edward Staples, long-time director of the Missouri Public Expenditures Survey, a taxpayers' organization, agreed with the governor that the chief executive has direct control over too many agencies.

He proposed the solution that is recommended by he Council of State Governments—an administrative director who would be responsible to he governor and would direct state government operations along guidelines supplied by the governor.

Dexter Will Vote Again on Water Lines, Sewer Bond Issue Passes

DEXTER — A special election to attempt to pass a $375,000 water line extension bond issue, has been set for Dec. 16 by the city council. The action followed defeat of the issue by a four- vote 671-339 margin, in Tuesday's election.

An equal amount of sewage bonds were approved by a 664-332 count, after an official count was made by the election commission.

Mayor Willis Conners, in announcing the election date, said that five absentees votes, opened by the commissioners, all favored the sewage issue, giving it the required two thirds majority.

The water section, proposal No. two, failed because of a discrepancy in voting the mayor said.

Bad weather failed to cut down the expected 1,000 voter turnout, from a 2,000 eligible list and Mayor Conners says he believes the water proposal will be passed at the second election, "especially if we have a decent weather condition the day of the voting."

The overall election called for $750,000 to be issued in bonds, $375,000 each for sewage and water, for additions, especially to homes that had recently been taken into city.

Two Injured

A pedestrian was injured on a rural road in Dunklin county Wednesday and an 80- year old woman near Wardell, was injured in car accidents.

Collier received a broken left arm and cuts on his right temple. He was taken to Dunklin County Memorial hospital in Kennett and will be transferred to a vcterans hospital.

Thomas Nelson, 74, Hayti, driver of a 1960 Chevrolet, came around a curve on route D, Wednesday at 1:50 p.m., lost control and struck a bridge.

A passenger, Mary Anna Nelson, 80, received possible fractured ribs and internal injuries, and was taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

Nelson ws arrested on a charge of careless and reckless driving.

Pentagon Says Okinawa Nuclear Base Vital to Pacific Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has told President Nixon giving up Okinawa as a nuclear base would seriously degrade the U.S. deterrent against aggression in the Pacific by such countries as Red China.

Defense officials, reporting this, say they expect some "special arrangement" to emerge from this week's discussions between Nixon and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato over Okinawa's expected reversion to Tokyo's control in 1972.

The arrangement, presumably would permit U.S. use of Okinawa—seized by the United States from Japan in World War II—as a nuclear springboard in case of extreme crisis in the Western Pacific.

An official communique reporting the result of the three days of meeting is scheduled Friday.

While the State Department wants an agreement politically acceptable to Sato's anti-nuclear opponents back home, Pentagon officials have been approaching the matter more from a strict U.S. security standpoint.

"The military significance of Okinawa would change drastically if we lost 'free use' of the island," a defense official said.

Defense officials won't talk about where nuclear weapons are stored but acknowledge that they are covered under the term "free use."

The Defense officials regard Okinawa as a "fantastic" military complex which places U.S. deterrent forces within 1,500 miles of such potentially hostile nations as Red China, North Korea, and North Vietnam.

"It is important for its deterent value, the other fellows' knowing we can use it anytime," as one official put it.

Demand for Flags Increases Sharply This Month in City

By DAN D. WHITTLE

The demand for Old Glory, flag stickers and flag decals has increased sharply in Sikeston this month and the overall sales for the year to date show an increase over last year.

John Vaughn, city clerk, had more than 200 decals on his desk in the city administration building this time last month. His supply has been depleted and an order is now in for additional decals.

"I had a man ask for a decal yesterday morning," Vaughn said. "I saw him again at the bank yesterday afternoon and he asked me again if I had managed to find some flags. People are really becoming actively involved and it's about time."

Vaughn told of a young man who came into his office to get a supply of decals to "give to his friends."

"He went back to where he worked and sold them to the guys there for a quarter a piece. They liked to have killed him when they found out he had gotten the things for nothing," Vaughn said.

Police are in charge of raising and lowering Old Glory each day at four locations. An officer was asked "doesn't it become a grind after awhile." His reply was "Nope." The locations are the American Legion hall, American Legion park, city administration building and the police station. The Flags generally last two to three months.

Charles Blanton III, business manager of The Daily Standard, said the sale of flags at the newspaper office this year has already surpassed last year's figure by more than a hundred. He estimated sales this year at 350.

"People want flags now," he said. "We had 32 flags in stock at the first of this month. We have already sold 19."

The manager at Woolworths estimated flag sales has increased 50 per cent or more this year compared to last. The store's supply is depleted.

The manager at Sterling estimated 24 flags have been sold there this month. About 70 flags have been sold in the store this year.

A Ben Franklin store employe estimated 10 flags have been sold there this month.

Ten who have (or had) flags displayed on their cars or in their home were interviewed this morning. They explained:

"I am for my country."

"Because I believe in it."

"I have one in my kitchen because my son demands it."

"I had a decal on my desk and someone stole it."

"I believe it is time Americans started standing up. The government we have is not ideal, but it is the best we have in the world."

"I have a Love It or Leave It sign on my car. And that's my sentiment."

"I want to be patriotic."

"To show I love my country."

"I have one on my car just for decoration."

"I think its pretty."

"I love America."

The 11th and last person interviewed this morning said:

"I have one in my heart."

Nixon, Sato Take up Economic Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's talks with Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato shifted today from Okinawa and nuclear weapons to economic differences—chiefly textiles and trade barriers.

Both leaders were under strong domestic pressures on the textile question. The United States wans Japan and other producing nations to voluntarily restrain the flow of woolen and man-made textiles entering this country.

Sato, who faces a critical election this year, wants to avoid any impression he is "buying back Okinawa" by making concessions on textiles.

A major concern of the threeday negotiations has been the return of Okinawa to Japanese control.

Authoritative sources said a joint communique to be issued Friday by the two leaders would have some carefully constructed language to get around the political dilemma.

But after Sato's return home U.S. officials expect to see some real movement from Japan at a Geneva conference on textile restraints.

The communique also is expected to cover an agreement reached by the President and prime minister at their first meeting Wednesday on the ground rules for continued U.S. bases on Okinawa after its return to Japan in 1972.

However, the communique will not make any reference to the removal of atomic devices from the island before 1972, sources say, but it was nevertheless agreed on by the two leaders during their initial meeting Wednesday.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS

The Economic Press Inc. which prints pamphlets to "educate" employes in customer relations offers this sage advice:

Many employes never meet, see, or speak to a customer from one year to the next. Some of them lose sight of the customer completely -- the only important things in their lives are their own department, their own particular jobs, and their own convenience.

They forget that the customer, in the final analysis, pays the bill for every bit of work done by everyone in their company. Each employe, by doing his job well, has an opportunity to give the customer good value for his money. If he doesn't do a good job, he gives the customer poor value.

They also forget that you don't have to meet the customer face - to - face to please or displease him. A late or mixed-up delivery, a poor typed letter, a faulty or slipshod piece of work, a mistake in billing -- things like these can make a customer a thousand miles away blow his top.

A customer - conscious employe is always a better employe. He recognizes what the business is all about.

A VISIT FROM ST. NICHOLAS

Dr. Moore's poem was originally given the title, "A Visit from St. Nicholas" but over the years it's taken on the title "The Night Before Christmas." It has been reprinted the world over every Christmas since its first printing in 1823. It is one of the most familiar poems in the language. Here it is again, as fresh in its spirit as when Dr. Moore first read it to his two daughters in the old mansion on the hill high above the Hudson, almost a century and a half ago.

---

"Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that Saint Nicholas soon would be there;
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar plums danced through their heads;
And mama in her 'kerchief and I in my cap
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters, and threw up the sash;
The moon on the breast of the new fallen snow,
Gave the luster of midday to objects below.
When what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little old driver so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment it must be Saint Nick.
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled and shouted, and called them by name;
"Now, Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen!
On Comet! on Cupid! on Donder and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch! To the top of the wall
Now, dash away, dash away, dash away all!"
As dry leaves that before the world hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle mount to the sky,
So up to the housetop the coursers they flew,
With the sleigh full of toys and Saint Nicholas too.
And then in a twinkling, I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head and was turning around,
Down the chimney Saint Nicholas came with a bound.
He was trimmed up with fur from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.
His eyes - how they twinkled! His dimples - how merry!
His cheecks were like roses, his nose like a cherry;
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard on his chin was as white as the snow,
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath;
He had a broad face and a little round belly
That shook, when he laughed like a bowl full of jelly,
He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf;
And I laughed, when I saw him, in spite of myself.
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head,
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work
And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose.
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they flew like a down of a thistle;
But I heard him exclaim ere he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night!"

A JIGGER OF COFFEE & A PAT OF BUTTER

The most serious food shortage in Cuba's history plagues Fidel Castro's government.

Queues at restaurants stretch to record lengths. Two weeks ago, the Cuban government announced that the island would continue on "summer time" -- the Cuban equivalent of daylight saving time - in order to conserve electricity and reduce that use of fuel oil.

Reports from Havana say it is not unusual for Cubans to wait in line eight hours for dinner or to have the door shut in their faces with the explanation that supplies have been exhausted.

Lines began growing early this year as effects of last year's severe drought showed up in the form of less fruit, vegetables, milk, beef, rice, tobacco and coffee in the markets.

In mid-March Castro ordered all state and private bars closed and drinking confined to restaurant bars. The lines grew again and moved toward a peak during the summer.

Main reason for the long lines is the continuing food shortage. But there also is a lack of almost every other consumer attraction - clothing, entertainment, appliances, automobiles and cosmetics.

Here are some examples of Cuba's ration list for eating at home:

Meat, weekly, seven ounces per person of first - class cuts and five ounces of second-class cuts; butter, two ounces per person per month; vegetable oil, one pound per person per month; fish, four ounces per person weekly - but it is not always available; coffee, 1-½ ounces per person per week - in a country where coffee is grown; chicken, one a month for persons over 65.

Many other food products are not rationed but amounts are restricted. All are expensive. In some instances a customer can buy food products only at a store where he is known.

Hotel dining rooms are restricted to serving guests, not the public Restaurant workers, under Communist prodding, work without tips, so complaints about waiting avail the customer little.

The Cuban government has an import problem. Castro says it costs the government $295 per Cuban annually for food imports - or a total of $232 million. Of this, $35.2 million goes for rice, a Cuban staple. Castro has promised that the island will no longer have to import rice after 1971 due to increased production.

The government also says it will quadruple milk production to abolish that import - $15.6 million a year - and raise the output of fish, beef, vegetables, coffee and citrus.

There was a time when Cuba was combining sugar cane and beef production - feeding Brahman and Santa Gertrudis cattle waste products from sugar production. That was before Castro, before the cattle industry was wrecked by the Communists.

One factor affecting the food supply this year has been an increase in food exports to offset the decline in sugar production. Sugar normally earns 80 percent of the country's foreign exchange.

The government reportedly is sending $2.25 million worth of meat to England this year - against none last year. Spain is to buy $1 million worth of Cuban beef in 1968.

Tons of grapefruit, limes, coffee and fruits are being shipped to Europe. In a country famous for its rums and cigars, exports have made these items just about non-existent on the island.

IT'S TRUE!

Among the most remarkable Western influences on the Japanese has been their physical growth. The combination of a varied diet (it used to be chiefly polished rice) and less constricted social habits, has made the average Japanese at least four inches taller than his grandfather. The grade schools have had to increase the height of their chairs and desks.

H.L. Hunt Says

RECOGNIZING COMMUNISTS CUBA

Recently agitation has been stepped up for United States diplomatic recognition of communist Cuba.

Congressman James Haley of Florida listed three primary reasons why we should not recognize Castro's government. In the first place, recognition would imply that Castro's regime was a legitimate government. This is certainly not the case, since Castro seized power by force, has never held an election, and is not supported by the vast majority of Cuban people.

Secondly, diplomatic recognition would allow a resumption of trade relations with communist Cuba. This would greatly bolster the Cuban economy and strengthen Castro's hold on the country. Congressman Haley pointed out that this would permit Castro "to follow his announced plans of financing more revolutions in South and Central America."

Finally, Congressman Haley stated: "...the Cuban monster has made no changes in his announced plans to spread his communist doctrines far beyond his own shores..." Our government should do everything possible to prevent these plans from being carried out. Diplomatic recognition would only encourage them.

We should also note Cuba's continued hostility to our own country. One Cuban delegate to the United Nations was expelled from the U.S. recently for reasons of national security. In the words of Congressman Haley: "This is hardly behavior we should expect from a nation seeking our recognition."

Freedom in the Western Hemisphere depends to a large extent on the actions of the United States. We should do nothing which would encourage communist tyranny, and diplomatic recognition of Red Cuba would have that effect as well as strike a serious blow against freedom in Latin America.

MR. SILENT MAJORITY:
President Nixon's Strange Ally

Washington, D.C.: — One of the oddest couples in this chaotic capital today is Richard Nixon and George Meany. On foreign policy you can't tear them apart. On domestic policy you can't bring them together.

Mr. World Labor, as Mr. Nixon calls Mr. Meany, actually leads the President's "silent Majority." Without it Mr. Nixon's poise might not have weathered the week. Without it Mr. Nixon would not have pushed through the ABM. Without it there might not have been so many thousands of favorable telegrams after the Nov. 3 speech.

This is Washington's most spectacular phenomenon since the British lobbed shells in from the river.

Aside from the labor "crowd" few noticed, nor was it generally reported, that the strongest support for Mr. Nixon's foreign policy speech came from Mr. Meany.

"The President's candid account of negotiations -- public, private and secret -- makes it abundantly clear that responsibility for continuation of the war rests solely on those who started the war-- the North Vietnamese," said President Meany.

"It must be apparent to the enemy and to the President's critics at home that Hanoi and Hanoi alone can now signal continued hostility or peace... The President's detailed account of what he has done and is doing demonstrates that he deserves the backing of the AFL- CIO and the American public."

This has been flashed to tens of thousands of AFL- CIO labor leaders. It has had its impact. When Sen. Charles Goodell addressed a pre- Moratorium Labor Assemblage for Peace last Friday in New York, he spoke to just a handful of minor local officials well padded by shop stewards and pried loose from their jobs for the conference.

Most of them came from the old lackluster left- wing unions which have been doing business at the old stand since their pro-Soviet days of the late '40s' cold war.

But the AFL - CIO once more stood aloof from the MOBE and Moratorium. And once more made certain that not a single facility in the land was shut down. And it must be noted that, without direct and antagonistic labor action (as has been dramatically evidenced abroad), the office of America's Chief Executive cannot be shaken.

So this report becomes more than a memo on George Meany's ambivalent embrace of Dick Nixon. There is no doubt that this labor federation will try to drive Sen. Goodell from office in '70. There is no doubt that the foreign policy issue will dominate labor's decisions next year.

The signs are all here. Mr. Meany who truly is Mr. AFL-CIO, which truly is some 13.6 million tightly organized unionists, is cochairman of the Citizens Committee for Peace with Freedom. This was organized in 1967 by Mr. Meany, Gen. Eisenhower and Harry Truman among others. They dispatched a nine- man commission to Vietnam recently. A few days before the President's televised message, the Committee issued a report buttressing each of his points and concluded that a policy of U.S. troop withdrawal can succeed provided that it "take place primarily on the basis of demonstrated improvement in South Vietnamese capabilities." In other words-- no timetable, "no more Charley Goodell," they say; perhaps not even a Ted Kennedy if he has "a formidable and supportable opponent" next year.

Mr. World Labor also is cochairman of Bob Hope's Week of Unity Committee, which opposed the moratorium.

These are public postures. There have been secret meetings, such as the conference in New York's Hotel Commodore some weeks ago when an AFL— CIO committee led by Mr. Meany took on five powerful foreign labor leaders in a "dialogue" in which the basic issue was whether or not to accommodate with Communist "labor leaders" in the Soviets and satellites.

Mr. Meany's critics called him hard- nosed and inflexible. He isn't. He has a passionate hatred for foreign dictatorships-- especially the Soviets' military junta.

Some of this distaste comes from years of fighting off Communist attacks on American labor. Some of this springs from such private briefings as he and some of his colleagues received from President Nixon recently. Confidentially the President told them that during the Cuban crisis the Russians had 38 ICBMs and we had 600. Now the Soviets have 1100 SSIs and 300 SS9s-- enough to cut another canal through the U.S. on a line from the Teamsters' marble palace here to San Francisco's Civic Center.

From Mr. Nixon and Dr. Kissinger the labor leaders heard that the U.S. has had no new missiles since 1962. We still depend on the Minuteman while they are developing fantastically new powerful thermonuclear weapons. They are "testing new missiles while we drag our feet," said the President. They are producing six, possibly eight nuclear submarines a year and now have 13 in operation -- each quite deadly. The problem is not overkill, but the degree of (or the lack of) sophistication of our weapons.

It is George Meany's position that Sovietism and Maoism are the hangmen of liberalism, freedom of action and elementary progress. He believes that the survival of the labor movement depends on a free capitalism -- albeit a capitalism which must never give more and more to the millions he leads.

And that's what makes him and Mr. Nixon a very odd couple indeed. Let no one think that Mr. Meany's silent majority won't roar its way through three years of labor crises and strikes, in communications, rubber factories, electronic plants, hospitals, steel mills, municipalities and, soon enough, even federal government services.

This is truly an ambivalence but it would be regretful if it were misunderstood in Hanoi.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee was gifted with a $6,000 luxury cross-country trip by jet from the nation's biggest gas transmission company.

This was shortly after his committee gave gas transmission firms a whopping loophole in the tax reform bill.

The capable Arkansas tax-bill writer was also provided with a limousine by the company, Tenneco Ine., while he was in the Los Angeles area. There he made a speech at a $20-a-plate fund-raising dinner for Rep. James C. Corman, D-Calif., a member of Mills's committee.

As Tenneco tells it, the flight was for Robert Miller, the company's Washington lobbyist, who was heading west anyway, and Mills just tagged along. But the fact is that the company flew its sofa and lounge- equipped luxury BAC-111 up from Houston specially for the flight with Mills.

Tenneco's red carpet service for the powerful chairman who holds the company's tax problems in his hand cost $6,000 based on expenses from Houston to Washington to Los Angeles and back to Washington for BAC-111 on airline runs.

Mills, his wife and the persuasive lobbyist were alone in grand style on the long flight out to the coast on Oct. 17 and back on Oct. 21. With regular seating instead of Tenneco's plush tables and lounge chairs, a BAC-111 takes about 65 passengers.

After the Mills's were whooshed the 2,310 miles to Los Angeles, Tennexo thoughtfully paid for and put at their disposal a chauffeured limousine to whisk them to and from the sumptuous Century Plaza Hotel. They flew back in the Tenneco jet after Mills made his political speech for Corman. The tax-talking lobbyist was still at the legislator's ear.

At the time of the flight, Mills already had reported out his version of the tax reform bill. But the Arkansas Democrat still maintains a life-and death hold over the measure because of coming Senate-House conferences and floor action.

Meanwhile, Mills's kindnesses to Tenneco and similar giant natural gas and oil firms is shining brightly in the House bill, to the sorrow of consumer-minded tax reformers.

For example, Tenneco and other gas transmission firms got a "pipeling sweetener" clause which lets them reap investment tax credits long after other industries begin paying through the nose. And while the public howled for an end or drastic lopping of the natural gas and oil industry's 27½ per cent depletion allowances, Mills was blithely cutting it only to 20 per cent. Tenneco, besides its gas lines, has huge gas reserves and oil holdings.

Six thousand dollars in company airplane tolls for any ordinary Congressman and a lobbyist to ride across the country and back is a good deal of money. This is especially so because there are 12 flights a day from here to Los Angeles at $354.90 first class round trip.

But a prize fish like the hard-working and powerful chairman of the Ways and Means Committee is easily worth every penny of luxury and comfort he can be persuaded to accept from a corporate giant.

This is an old aniom of the Washington game, even though the House bars any "substantial" gift to a Congressman handling bills affecting the donor.

--DRAFT REFORMS--

Behind the push for draft reforms has been a threat that President Nixon would make administrative changes if Congress failed to act. This column can now reveal that some changes will be ordered, reducing the vulnerability of young men to the draft, whether Congress acts or not.

Meeting behind closed doors with Republican congrsional leaders, the President divulged ... intention but urged his leaders to push for legislation.

"Hugh, Les, let's push it," he said, addressing Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott and House Republican Whip Les Arends.

Then he asked for a report form Secretary of Defense Mel Laird.

"Whether or not Congress acts," said Laird, "we will make changes administratively in January. But we would like statutory leave to make random selection of dates of call, changes that will reduce the vulnerability from seven years to 12 months."

--LAX AUTO SAFETY--

The motorist's protection from violations of the Federal Auto Safety Standards in 1969 and 1970 cars is about as flimsy as a Detroit fender.

While Transportation Secretary John Volpe ballyhoos the job he is doing for the American driver, an unsettling document with supporting data prepared by his safety experts tells a different story. The unpublished material shows:

Although 1970 cars came out months ago, it was only in early November that 23 cars were bought by Volpe's department for tests to see whether they comply with his safety standards.

In fact, only 21 government-owned cars altogether are being tested from the 1969 Detroit lines. It will be months before this tiny sampling is tested and the results released to the nation's drivers.

And it will be well into 1970 before the buyer of a 1970 car will know whether he's getting the safety he pays for or is driving a motorized time bomb. The report gloomily concludes that some models will never be tested while on others, the driver will have to wait two years to know whether his car was safe when he bought it.

The tests on 1968 models were finished and are being released only this month, a lag of more than two years.

NEW YORK (AP) — Buying a new car may put a strain on the family budget, but it puts an even greater strain on family relationships.

Paying for the chosen chariot seems almost a minor problem compared with the complicated process of choosing it. Selection of make, model colors, type of upholstery and optional accessories can cause debates between husband and wife that threaten to outlast the Paris peace talks.

We were off to a promising start the other day when we went to visit our friendly neighborhood automobile dealer. For one thing, we undertook the mission sneakily while our daughter was at school so the arguments would be only twosided.

Then, since I don't drive, I let the family chauffeur make the big decision on what kind of car to get. But since I do ride, I wanted my say on such matters as color, inside and out, and demanded full veto power over my enthusiastic husband's choice of extras.

Once we got the color scheme picked, we got down to the real problem: What little goodies were we going to order to embellish the basic car?

"Okay," said the salesman, jotting down a deceptively low figure, "here's the price for the standard vehicle. Now, let's get down to the nitty gritty—accessories. I assume you want wheels," he added brightly.

Then he went through 17 pages of options designed to make our car a thing of beauty and a debt forever. My gadgethappy husband was in favor of all additions, from a refrigerated glove compartment to a remote control color television set, but I was a bit more realistic.

"That electronic gun to shoot coins into toll baskets," I protested. "Do we really need that? And I think we can get along without the coffee percolator that works off the cigarette lighter."

"How often do we buy a car?" demanded my profligate spouse. "You can never tell when an automatic map-folding machine might come in handy."

After we got it all totalled up, it urned out the options were the main purchase, and the car was the accessory.

But I'm not complaining. This automobile is bigger than our last one and to get it into the garage my husband will have to clean out a massive accumulation of junk—a task I haven't been able to talk him into during 5 years of nagging.

Fantasies, With Guilt

Dear Ann Landers: I am 31 years old, married and have two children. Three months ago I took a job as a doctor's office assistant. Although I was engaged to handle the phone and do book work, I was trained to fill in for the nurse when she is occupied or absent.

Saturday, a 19-year-old boy came in for a physical. I showed him to the examination room and asked him to undress to the waist. Evidentally he misunderstood. When I returned a few minutes later, he was completely nude. My first impulse was to tell him to put on his shorts, but for some reason I didn't. I went ahead and weighed and measured him, took his temperature and blood pressure.

He was somewhat embarrassed, but I enjoyed the situation immensely. The feelings I experienced were indecent and I am ashamed of myself. Now, the worst--several times this week I have caught myself daydreaming and hoping other young men would misunderstand the instructions.

I am happily married and can't understand what has come over me. Has something gone wrong with my mind? I am upset over this whole thing and any help you can give me would be deeply appreciated.--Hartford.

Dear Hart: Everyone has fantasies and apparently you are having some delayed adolescent dillies. Accept them as such and stop feeling guilty. R.L. Stevenson once said, "We all have thoughts and desires that would shame hell." No truer words were ever spoken.

Dear Ann Landers: Mr. K. was new in town. He presented himself to me and to my family as a well-to-do- contractor. He drove a '69 Olds, wore custom tailored suits, and had a different pair of cufflinks for every day of the week.

After a whirlwind courtship of 39 days, I married him. Now, four months later, it turns out that he left Toledo owing everybody. I have seen letters from collection agencies, lawyers, angry merchants and former colleagues from whom he borrowed money. I am afraid to answer the phone because he has run up overdue bills in local shops.

Our marriage is heading for the rocks because all we do is argue about money. I cannot respect a man who has a bad reputation and no integrity. I am also afraid that I might be held responsible for his debts. Is misrepresentation of financial status grounds for divorce? Please advise me. ---Castles Crumbled

Dear Cas: See an attorney. The laws vary from state to state. In some states, misrepresentation is grounds for annulment. And let this be a lesson to all the dolls out there who are impressed by external trappings and go husband hunting with a Geiger-counter.

Dear Ann Landerss: I went with this man for years. When I say "went with" I mean night and day, seven days a week. Whenever I mentioned marriage, he put me off. One day he told me he was not feeling well and his doctor suggested a change of scenery. "So," he said, "I found another girl."

He married the tramp within 10 days and I cried myself into a state of collapse. Two months later he phoned and said he wanted me to be his friend. I told him to drop dead. He has called every day for three weeks, begging me to take him back. He wants to divorce the girl and "go with" me again. Not MARRY, mind you, just "go with."

Is he crazy? What should I do? ---Beebe

Dear Beebe: Yes, he's crazy, and if you don't know what to do, you are crazy too.

Christmas can be a problem. What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' new book, "Truth is Stranger," is available in book stores.

ALL OVER, EXCEPT THE COOKIN': After more than one year of preparation, the New Madrid County Extension Homemakers' Council has released its recipebook which contains 270 offerings by local contributors. ## Cookbook By New Madrid County Homemakers

"Favorite Recipes From People You Know" is the title of a new 93-page recipe book released by the New Madrid County Extension Homemakers' Council and it describes exactly what is contained between its covers.

The book offers 270 recipes which were submitted mostly by New Madrid County women; however, favorite recipes also were contributed by women elsewhere.

Perhaps the best known contributors are Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes, wife of Missouri's governor, and Mrs. Clarissa Start Davidson of Webster Groves, a columnist for a St. Louis daily newspaper. Mrs. Hearnes presents her recipe for Heath Bar Pie and Mrs. Davidson offers her favorite of Wine Cherry Jello Ring.

Mrs. Henry Hulshof of Portageville, president of the council, said that the best features of the book are that practically all the recipes are easy to prepare and the ingredients are ones usually found in food stores in this area. The chances of finding a recipe containing hard - to - get ingredients are almost nil, she noted.

Mrs. Hulshof said that so many recipe books on the market today include plates and dishes that only the best of cooks would dare to try.

A wide variety is offered and the index breaks down as follows: Meats, 19 recipes; casseroles, 22; vegetables, 23; salads, 29; sauces, 8; breads, 12; beverages, 7; desserts, 22; cookies, 26; pies, 21; cakes, 55; and miscellaneous items 10.

Mrs. Hulshof said that the council had been making plans for this project for more than a year. They wanted to have the books ready before Thanksgiving because this is the time of year when people start thinking about food more.

The council is comprised of 17 homemaker clubs in New Madrid County with memberships totaling about 238 members. Clubs and their presidents are: Baderville, Mrs. Y. M. Caffey, Rt. 1 Lilbourn; Busy Bee, Mrs. Robert Flowers, Rt. 1 Matthews; Canalou Community, Mrs. Dale Geske, Rt. 1 Matthews; East Gideon, Mrs. Bill Slavens, Malden; Eastern Homemaker, Mrs. Tommy Drake, Howardville; Friendship LaForge, Mrs. Sarah Harris, Rt. 1 New Madrid; Friendship Parma, Mrs. Dan Johnson, Parma; Kewanee, Mrs. E. L. Hardin, Kewanee; Marston Goodwill, Mrs. George Washington, Rt. 1 Portageville; Matthews, Mrs. Lester King, Matthews; New Hope, Mrs. Elmer Williams, Rt. 2, Parma.

Books are selling at $2 per copy from the various club members.

Bootheel's Best

All- Bootheel division honors were divided about equally as was the league title as three of the four teams tied for the championship and all four had players selected for the Star teams.

South Pemiscot of Steele had players filling seven of the 23 places as the first team offense had a three way tie for end. The Bulldogs had four selected for the defensive squad while Illmo- Scott City toped the offensive selections with five players being named.

Gideon placed three players on the offensive unit and two on the defensive squad while Delta C-7 had one offensive player selected and three defensive. I—SC had one on the defensive unit while the Bulldogs placed four on defense and three on offense.

Seven underclassmen were selected, most on the defensive unit where five were named.

I—SC's Buddy Hicks and Ken Cavaness were selected as the divisions outstanding Lineman and Back.

DEXTER ALL STAR Grid selections included this trio of stickouts from the 1969 football team. Shown (l to r) are:

John Robinson, tackle- linebacker; Jerry Christian, offensive guard and Mike Backfish, end.

Cowboy vs. Animal

DENVER, Colo. — Professional rodeo is a two-way competition between cowboy and animal. The contestant is the first to complain that his opponent doesn't receive due recognition.

There are more than 50 stock contractors in the Rodeo Cowboys Association. These are the men who provide bucking broncs and bulls for more than 500 annual association - sanctioned rodeos.

Riders know the value of the animals they compete upon, and they speak of the various bucking characteristics with the familiarity of a major league pitcher sizing up the opposing batting order. A cowboy knows his chance of winning is greatly increased by the calibre of the animal he is to ride.

Pro rodeo reaches its annual peak at the National Finals Rodeo, set this year for Dec. 6-14 at Oklahoma City. This is showcase competition, where only the top men in the association compete. World championships are determined here.

Contestants and the association's board of directors each year observe a listing of more than 600 bulls and saddle and bareback broncs that were nominated by their owners for Finals action.

The association then makes a paring of NFR nominees. The 1969 roster includes 72 each of saddle and bareback broncs and bulls.

Heading the list is the great saddle bronc, Descent, recently voted by 1969's top 15 saddle bronc riders as Bucking Horse of the Year. This is the fourth time the big Palomino gelding, a descendant of Man O'War, has won the honor. Lynn Beutler, Elk City, Okla., placed a $10,000 value on Descent, owned by the Beutler Brothers, Vold & Cervi stock contracting group from Fowler, Colo.

There are others, such as the fine little bareback bronc, Three Bars, owned by Reg Kesler of DeWinton, Alberta, Vold's flashy brown mare, Necklace; and Red Rebel from the Harry Knight string near Fowler.

Bulls are something else. A few bull riders claim any toro is impossible to ride if it turns on full power. In that event, some bulls are always at full throttle.

Out in Oregon, take Christensen Brothers' outstanding Wilfred, or Missoula, who are but rarely ridden to the eight-second whistle. Jim Shoulders of Henryetta, Okla., has a couple of breath- takers in Tornado and Batman. Tornado was unridden in some 250 attempts until ageless Freckles Brown turned the trick at the 1967 Finals.

GARY HODGES of East Prairie was selected as a guard on the Southern Division All-League second team as released yesterday. Hodges' picture was omitted from yesterday's paper.

SEMO State Final Saturday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State College winds up a successful football campaign Saturday with a 1:30 p.m. game at Houck Stadium against Illinois State University of Normal, Ill.

The Indians would like to conclude the season with a win,if for no other reason than to partially redeem themselves before the home fans for last Saturday's 44-24 defeat by Central Missouri State College of Warrensburg.

The loss denied Southeast Missouri State its third-undisputed MIAA title in a row. The Indians, with a 7-2 overall record, share the conference crown with Northeast Missouri State of Kirksville.

The assignment to do an about- face this week promises to be tough. Tom Thrower, Southeast Missouri State head coach, said, "We think our troops will rebound pretty well for this game. We'll also be in a little better shape physically than we have been for several weeks. Most of our injured players will be ready to go again."

But Thrower adds, in the same breath, "This is probably the toughest team that we have played all season. They give a lot of scholarships, they're big, and I'm sure they will have us physically outmanned. It is going to take a tremendous effort on our part to beat them."

Illinois State, coached by Larry Bitcon, defeated Bradley University last Saturday 27-7. the Redbirds have only a 5-4 record this season, but this is misleading, according to Thrower. "They've been beaten by four of the toughest small college teams in the country," he said.

The Redbirds, according to Thrower, "play pretty straight football. They keep you from running, if they can, and in turn they try to run right over you. They like to grind it out."

Illinois State's ground attack is led by fullback Bruce Cullen, who holds several school records. Cullen, a 200- pound junior from Midlothian, Ill., and an Army veteran, has gained more than 700 yards and is averaging about four yards a carry.

One point possibly in Southeast Missouri State's favor is that the Redbirds have not won on the road all season.

Another is that Indian quarterback Greg Schroeder will probably be back at full straight again.

The senior signal caller from St. Louis played most of the first half against Central Missouri State last week, but did not see action after intermission. He suffered a painful shoulder injury two weeks ago in the Indians' victory over Northeast Missouri.

Commenting on the Indians' loss to Central Missouri State, Thrower said, "We have 17 or 18 players who played well. The other three or four just sold the team out. That's all you can say."

It rained Monday and Tuesday in Cape Girardeau and an inch of snow was on the ground Wednesday. Thrower was hopeful, however, that the weather would warm up and the field would have a chance to dry out by Saturday afternoon. The Indians' running game, featuring junior Al Holmes of St. Louis, sophomore Art Miller of Kirkwood, and senior Bruce Hoffman of Park Forest, Ill., functions better on a dry field, the coach pointed out. Schroeder and Hoffman are among seven seniors who will play their last game Saturday in a Southeast Missouri State uniform. Others are Bruce Nall of Poplar Bluff, Steve Decker of Jackson, Ken Henderson of St. Louis, Ken Joggerst of Ste. Genevieve, and Larry Wicks of St. Louis.

Southeast Missouri State and Illinois State have played only twice before -- the World War II years of 1943 and 1944. The Redbirds won both games.

McCovey..NL's Most Valuable

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie McCovey, San Francisco's home run and runs batted in champion, shaded Tom Seaver, the New York Mets' ace who led the majors with 25 victories for the 1969 National League Most Valuable Player Award Thursday although each received 11 first place votes.

McCovey wound up with 265 points to Seaver's 243 in the balloting of the 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association announced by Jack Lang, secretary-treasurer. The secret vote by two committee men from each league city was taken after the season and before the playoffs and included only regular season performances. Lang tabulated the votes this week.

Hank Aaron, Atlanta outfielder who ranks No. 3 on the alltime home run list, was third with two first-place votes and 188 points. Aaron won the MVP in 1957 when the Braves were in Milwaukee. Pete Rose of Cincinnati, the two-time batting champ, was next with 127 points, followed closely by Ron Santo, Chicago's third baseman, with 124.

Tommie Agee and Cleon Jones, who play side by side in the Mets' outfield, were next. Agee had 89 points and Jones, who led the league during most of the summer, had 82 points.

Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, the winner in 1966, was eighth with 51 points, followed by Phil Niekro, Atlanta's knuckleball pitcher with 47 and Tony Perez, Cincinnati third baseman, with 28.

In addition to Aaron, and Clemente, other former MVP winner to get votes were Ernie Banks, the 1958-59 champ, 15; Maury Wills, of Los Angeles, the 1962 winner, 17; Bob Gibson of St. Louis, last year's MVP, 2, and Orlando Cepeda of Atlanta, the 1967 NVP, 1.

A total of 38 players were mentioned in the scattered voting. Last year when Gibson won he received 14 of the 20 firsts, the other six going to Rose. The committee was expanded to 24 this year because of the addition of Montreal and San Diego.

McCovey beat out Seaver with 11 firsts, nine seconds, two thirds and two fourths, the only player mentioned on all 24 ballots. Two men did not list Seaver, who received 11 firsts, four seconds, five thirds, one fourth and one fifth. Aaron was listed on 23 of the 24 ballots. Some writers confine their votes to men who play every day and do not list pitchers.

The American League's Most Valuable Player was Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins. Like McCovey, Killebrew played for a team that did not win the pennant although the Twins did take a divisional title.

Farmers Asked to Report Fescue Foot Outbreaks

COLUMBIA — George Garner, extension agricultural chemistry specialist at the University of Missouri, urges cattle producers to report outbreaks of fescue foot to their area livestock agents, agronomy agents, or veterinarians. The reports are important to UMC's research efforts to isolate the causes of the condition.

According to Garner, early symptoms of fescue foot appear first as lameness in one or both rear limbs. Front legs are rarely affected. Swelling may occur from hoff to the hock. The more serious residual effects include loss of hooves, tail switch, and ear tips.

Affected cattle will usually recover if removed from the fescue field. Cattle become gaunt but will eat if hay or grain is placed before them.

Garner says that outbreaks of fescue foot in Missouri can be expected as winter approaches and more cattle are grazed on fescue. The number of outbreaks (ranging from 21 to 28) has been relatively constant for the past three years. Survey data indicate that approximately 10 per cent of a herd is affected. A severe outbreak; however, may involve 50 per cent or more of a producer's cattle.

The specific cause of fescue foot has not been identified. Researchers are continuing their search along two lines. One is for a fungus which grows on fescue during the late fall season and sporatically at other times. The other search is aimed at chemical constituents within the fescue plant.

Fescue foot cases plotted on the map (below) indicate a geographical distribution of outbreaks in Missouri. Previous reports to workers at the Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station reveal that most outbreaks have occurred in an area bounded by a line from Kansas City to Columbia and from Columbia south to the Arkansas line. "It should be pointed out," says Garner, "that this is also an area where large acreages of fescue pasture exist."

Numerous cases are scattered throughout the state as indicated on the map. Each symbol represents a report received from county and area Extension specialist and veterinarians in the area.

66 Make Festive Breads

BENTON - In the festive breads workshops conducted in Charleston, Benton, and Poplar Bluff, 66 homemakers teamed up and made, decorated, displayed, and tasted the festive bread of their choice under the guidance of Miss Areva M. Abernathy, area home economist foods and nutrition, Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi, and Butler counties.

Their products focused on Thanksgiving and Christmas, but illustrations were discussed for Easter, anniversaries, birthdays, parties, patriotic occasions, and other special surprises. It was pointed out that more yeast doughs could be made popular for festivity rather than so many cake, cooky, or pastry type things.

The women summarized the workshop by saying that mastering the making and handling sweet dough is the secret of festive breads. To begin with, yeast must be "alive" and not killed by dissolving it in too hot water. They also concluded that in shaping doughs into the many forms for festivity "relaxing" or "resting" the dough is a must to make it handle easily or "behave" This is accomplished by letting the dough lay for 5 - 10 minutes before shaping or lifting and dropping it from time to time during shaping. And they liked the idea that all may be made ahead, frozen unfrosted in moisture - proof wrap, and thawed in wrapping.

For most festive breads basic sweet doughs are made "special" to which various combinations of spieces, nuts, candied fruits and peel, fresh fruits and their juices and peel have been added. The dough itself is soft made delicate and tender by added and varied amounts of sugar, fat and eggs over what is used in regular loaf bread. Another note of festivity is gained in the shape or form it is made into for baking and the manner and kind of decoration.

In the Holiday Fruit bread they made, the flavor of white raisins, citron, and maraschino cherries wre enhanced by the spice cardamon. The fruit bread was made more festive by being shaped into a double braid.

The Swedish Tea Ring featured dark raisins, cinnamon, and butter. Another sweet dough variation was made into a stollen to which citron, almonds, lemon rind and candied cherries were added.

A third variation was Kulich; dough baked in tall or flat cans and frosted with confectioners sugar and decorated with candies or nuts.

The children (and adults) enjoyed the Christmas tree made the zig-zagging strands of dough to form a tree. When baked many ideas for decorating it fit into the theme of any Christmas party.

Yeast dough canes were a special which the children could make and decorate.

Orange - date bread featured dried dates, fresh orange juice and peel. The doughnut was given special treatment; not to over kneed and handle the dough. A quick method of making Denish pastry was enjoyed. The most favored recipe was the Holiday Fruit Bread.

HOLIDAY FRUIT BREAD
- 2 cups milk, scalded
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon crushed or ground cardamon seed
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 cakes compressed or 2 packages granular yeast
- 1/4 cup lukewarm water
- 2 beaten eggs
- 4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup white raisins
- 1 cup shredded citron
- 1 cup drained chopped maraschino cherries
- 5 1/4 cups all-purpose flour

Combine milk, shortening, sugar, salt, spices; cook to lukewarm. (milk need not be scalded if non-fat dry milk solids have been used to make the liquid milk.) Add yeast to lukewarm water to soften. Add to milk mixture. Add eggs. Mix well. Add 4 cups all purpose flour. Knead 8 to 10 minutes or until dough is elastic and smooth. Let rise until double in bulk. Punch down and knead lightly. Let rest. Form in two (2) round loaves baked in greased 9 inch round cake pans. Or, take 1 half dough and braid either in single braid or double braid to bake on a baking sheet. Let rise until double in bulk. Bake in Moderate oven (350 degrees) about 45 minutes or until done. While warm, brush with butter or margarine, or frost braided loaf and decorate.

Publications from which the basic sweet dough, orange date bread and doughnuts were taken are available on request from the University Extension Center in your county or contact Miss Areva M. Abernathy, Area Home Economist, Foods and Nutrition, for your copies of "homemade Bread and Rolls" Cir. 686, and "Yeast Bread and Rolls Using Nonfat Dry Milk" Cir. 836.

Ban on Leaf Burning Creates Problem Of Clogged Sewers

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) - Last month St. Louis County enacted a ban on leaf burning to cut down on air pollution. No one could foresee the outcome - clogged sewers.

"With the last heavy rain we had 40 to 50 complaints about sewers being clogged," said Jack McLaughlin, director of maintenance for the Metropolitan Sewer District.

"The people sweep the leaves into the streets, the rain carries them into the sewers, and the sewers back up."

Result sewer pollution.

Webster Groves city manager George Majors said his men are working overtime to get the sewers cleaned.

Southwest City Voters Approve Cent Sales Tax

SOUTHWEST CITY, Mo. (AP) — Southwest City voters approved a one- cent city sales tax by a vote of 94-82 in a special election Tuesday.

The total vote included five absentee ballots. The proposal required a simple majority for passage.

Mayor J. C. Adams said Southwest City is the first community in Missouri to adopt the sales tax under provisions of a new state law.

Other cities in southwest Missouri, including Neosho and Joplin, are considering local sales taxes.

A sales tax measure was defeated in St. Joseph early this month and another in Clayton lost 1,364 to 1,280 Tuesday.

Southwest City barely qualified under state law for the election. The McDonald County Municipality has a population just a few over the minimum requirement of 510.

The revenue of the Southwest City proposal which will go into effect April has not been firmly estimated.

The money, according to proponents headed by Mayor J. C. Adams, is needed for street improvements, a new fire truck and improvement of a flood control ditch.

Bill Would Require Packagers to Date Perishable Foods

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Leonard Farbstein has introduced a bill requiring packagers of perishable foods to put on the label the date after which it can not safety be used.

"The store manager should not be the only one able to recognize fresh food," said the New York Democrat, noting many stores have an internal system of coding foods with a date beyond which they will spoil if left on shelves.

The measure would allow the secretary of health, education and welfare to determine how long a food can be kept before deteriorating and require the packager to print it on the label.

They Came to Washington . . .

opposed by some, staunchly supported by others . . . this is how it was November 15, 1969.

ANTIWAR DEMONSTRATORS jam historic Pennsylvania Avenue between two flags —at right the stripes but hearts in place of the familiar stars and, at left, the Viet Cong banner.

THOUSANDS MASS at the foot of the Washington Monument.

Moratorium march route took the thousands of war protesters from Capitol Hill along historic Pennsylvania Avenue to within a block of the White House. Extremist demonstrators later clashed with police at the Justice Department.

AT THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT, where violence marred the peaceful day, tear gas scattered demonstrators.

THE OTHER SIDE also was heard. Opponents of the Moratorium sign a petition supporting the President's Vietnam policy.

FUTURE EAGLE'S NEST — A "Screaming Eagle" wields a swift ax as he clears the thick jungle of trees for a landing zone for another kind of "bird" near Fire Base Airborne in the A Shau Valley, Republic of Vietnam. The lumberjacking soldier is a member of A Company, 2d Battalion, 506th Infantry, 101st Airborne Division (Airmobile).

Death Makes Income Tax Not So Sure

Former Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, chairman of the National Committee on Tax Justice (NCTJ), has called for immediate action by Congress to end a tax subsidy that cost the American taxpayer $2.5 billion in lost revenue, a loss that benefits the wealthy few and is made up in the tax bills of most Americans.

"The plugging of this truckhole that allows $11½ billion in appreciation on assets transferred at death to permanently escape taxation is a must in this session of Congress. The Tax Reform Act of 1969 will be a sham unless Congress acts," said Mr. Douglas.

Philip M. Stern, a member of the NCTJ and the author of the Great Treasury Raid, testifing before the Senate Committee on Finance described the loophole as follows:

"But, of course, that isn't the whole story. I have been talking of the capital gains tax as a 25 percent tax. But for literally billions of capital gains each year, it isn't 25 percent at all. It's zero.

"For those who are patient enough (by which I really mean wealthy enough) to hold on to their appreciated properties until death, the capital gains tax is zero. By way of illustration, when I die the Xerox stock I own will be passed on to my heirs at its value at my death. That is, shares I bought at $50 that rise, say to $250 in my life will be treated, in my children's hands, as if they had been bought for $250 and all the gains that took place during my lifetime will be wiped out, for tax purposes.

"Each year, the astounding total of $11.5 billion wholly escapes capital gains tax in that matter. The annual revenue lost from that feature alone is estimated at $2.5 billion. . . ."

"The NCTJ called the correction of this defect a matter of top priority. The Tax Reform Act of 1969, passed by the House of Representatives, did not cure this abuse. The House Ways and Means Committee promised a study of the matter and a bill in this Congress.

Meaningful tax reform requires action now, Douglas said.

CULTIVATING INTEREST rather than land is this antique tractor. LeRoy Meade of Dewey, Okla., stands at controls of the Rumely Advance Steam Engine he is restoring. The 20,000-pound, 60-horsepower tractor has one forward and one reverse gear and is powered by steam.

AFTER DOING THEIR THING outdoors this summer, do-it-yourselfers will move inside to prepare for a winter of home repairs and handicrafts. An estimated 70 million power tools will be used in home workshops, according to the Power Tool Institute, which offers these safety suggestions: 1. Never carry power tools by the cords—this can cause damage leading to a short circuit; 2. A cluttered workbench is an invitation to trouble—keep it neat and well-organized; 3. Loose clothing and dangling jewelry are hazards when working with power tools; 4. This fellow is making three mistakes: The saw is too large for the job; the work should be held in a vise and he should be wearing safety goggles.

RITUAL OF THE CHOPPERS. This GI really is not in the midst of a religious experience, he's merely guiding a line of helicopters landing in South Vietnam.

SLIPPING AND SLIDING, individual efforts proved fruitless as each boy tried to reach prize money atop the greased pole at the Sneedville, Tenn., Old-fashioned Celebration. They finally made it by forming a human pyramid and later shared the loot.

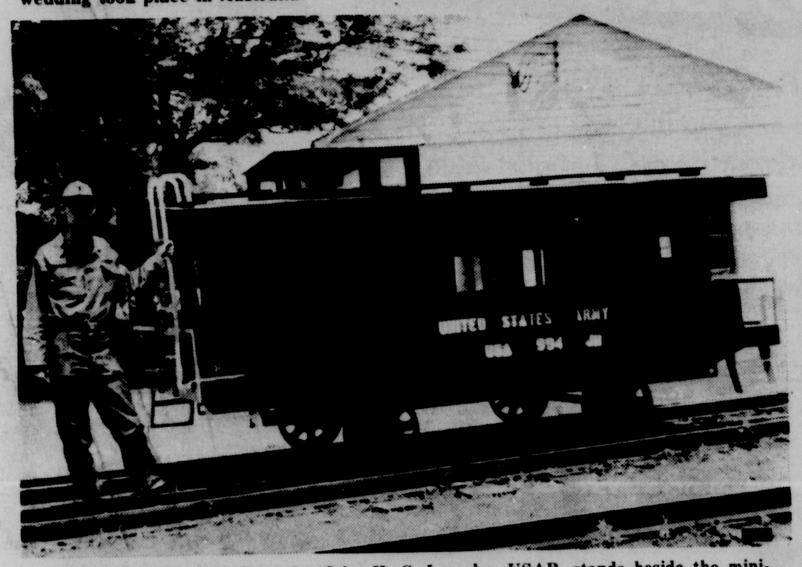
Come Snow, Cold or Showers, Classifieds Are Tops In Selling Power

THROUGH ANY OBSTACLE — Special Forces troops rappel from a UH-1B HUEY helicopter. The Green Berets demonstrated this technique during Brass Strike IV. When dense vegetation and rough terrain prevent helicopters from landing, troops often exit in this fashion. Brass Strike IV, a U.S. Strike Command exercise, was held at Fort Bragg, N.C. (U.S. Army photo by Sp4 Ernst H. Robl)

AUTUMN GLOW—Lush cotton velour in glowing fall colors offers the ideal combination for campus wear: stylish good looks with all the comfort of cotton. At left, a long-sleeved style with striped trim at neck and sleeves echoed in a dashing tie belt. At right, contrasting stripes parade across a short-sleeved skimmer. Both by Knitique.

LOVE ON A BIKE. Their marriage ceremony over, barefooted Michael Farr, 23, and his bride, the former Tracey Austin, 22, make their getaway on a motorcycle, leaving behind 60 hippie friends with a wild collection of guitars, flowers and beads. The wedding took place in Australia.



MINI-CABOOSE — First Lt. John H. C. Lassahn, USAR, stands beside the mini-caboose he designed and built three years ago while at the Army Transportation Center. The caboose is used at Christmas to bring cheer to children at Fort Eustis, Va. Lieutenant Lassahn, a railroader in civilian life, at Fort Eustis for annual reserve training.

Hearnes Says College for All Idea Misguided

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Gov. Warren E. Hearnes is concerned about the widespread demand that college educations should be available to everyone, regardless of mental ability.

"There currently is a battle cry being sounded in our country," the governor said Tuesday "to the effect that every person has a right to a college education. That slogan has a nice ring to it, because one immediately thinks of those students who deserve to go to college but don't have the money which is needed.

"However, that all encompassing slogan embraces equally those who are unable to do college level work and those who might have the mental capacity but not the desire.

"There is a theory that this group should be accomodated by building more colleges and lowering the academic standards. I strongly disagree with that theory. It could only result in a watered-down educational system at a time when we seek the highest quality."

Hearnes outlined his views in a speech prepared to welcome members of the Steering Committee of the Education Commission of the States.

He said the states do have the obligation to provide technical or vocational education to those students not qualified for or desiring education in a first class college or university.

He said "the interests of these people and the interests of society are best served, I feel, through providing facilities for technical education. Our obligation is to develop schools which offer courses ranging from the basic manual skills through training for the operation of complex computer systems.

"Our obligation definitely is not to lower the academic standards of higher education."

Swinger Takes Risk In Hitting FBI Agent

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Knuckles worked his way to the top of a gang and became a big shot-at. Dying under a hail of bullets, he was given a lavish gangland funeral, befitting his statue, by his erstwhile associates. During the festivities, Henry, one of the "mourners" spotted a stranger in the area who was viewing the crowd with more than just a passing interest.

The result? He dimmed the stranger's view by giving him two black eyes.

The stranger, however, turned out to be an FBI agent a Henry was promptly arrested for violating a federal law that made it a crime to assault an FBI agent while on duty.

"I didn't know the guy was an agent," Henry argued in court. "If I did, I'd never have slugged him. After all, while I may be stupid, I'm not crazy."

Pleading his ignorance, Henry insisted that he be acquitted.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you free the free-swinging Henry?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when a person swings at someone, he does so at his own risk. And, if the victim happens to be an FBI aagent on duty, he's committed the crime with which Henry had been charged. The law making it a crime to assault an FBI agent on duty, concluded the judge, does not require that the attacker know that his victim is a member of the FBI (Based upon a 1964 United States Court of Appeals Decision)

'Battle of Britain' Begins at Malone

Youngsters- call them kids if you will- fought and won the epic Battle of Britain in the skies over London in 1940 - and it's youngsters, kids maybe, who made up most of the supporting cast of Harry Saltzman's spectacular renactment of that most decisive of all battles, "Battle of Britain," which United Artists, an entertainment service of Transamerica Corporation, brings to the Malone Theater today for one week in Color by Technicolor and Panavision.

Their names are in striking contrast to the stars assembled by Saltzman for key roles in his multi- million dollar spectacle. Everybody, for example, knows Harry Andrews, Michael Caine, Trevor Howard, Curt Jurgens, Ian McShane, Kenneth More, Laurence Olivier, Christopher Plummer, Nigel Patrick, Michael Redgrave, Ralph Richardson, Robert Shaw, Patrick Wymark and Susannah York who play the key roles.

But very few know of Edward Fox, Nicholas Pennell, James Cosmo, Gareth Forwood, Nicholas Tate, Alan Tuckerand and Myles Hoyle who play the young pilots. And yet, says Director Guy Hamilton, there undoubtedly are at least several names of tomorrow's stars among them. Youth, as the saying goes, will be served and Hamilton's the man to serve it.

And kids indeed they were, those pilots of the RAF rushed out of prep schools and office appreticeships in the face of the greatest threat Britain ever faced- Goering's dreaded Luftwaffe. At first they were required to fly a minimum of 150 hours before being trusted with fighting planes. But as they were brought down, over England and over the distant German air bases in ever-increasing numbers, this time was cut and cut until in some cases the kids had no more than 15 hours of training.

And yet it was to these kids that "so many were indebted by so few." They won the Battle of Britain, and according to some military experts, thus lost World War II for Adolph Hitler.

While "Battle of Britain" is an authentic re- enactment of everything that happened in that three- month struggle which commenced with the blitzing of London on July 10th 1940. James Kennaway of "Tunes of Glory" fame, with the assistance of Wilfred Greatorex wrote a tense and highly dramatic narrative against is epic canvas.

Kennedy Rites Built Around Descendants

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP)—As sheets of rain lashed this quaint Cape Cod town, the Kennedy family congregated today at the parish church to bid their patriarch—Joseph P. Kennedy—farewell.

The service, a white funeral Mass, was planned around Joseph's children and grandchildren, and only family members and close friends attended.

Afterward the body was borne by hearse to the family plot at Holyhood Cemetery in Brookline, nestled in the hills southwest of Boston, for burial.

Kennedy, father of the late President John F. Kennedy and two U.S. senators, died Tuesday after struggling with illness for eight years. A wealthy financier, he also served as U.S. ambassador to Britain from 1938 to 1940. He was 81.

The Mass was simple, with family members taking part wherever possible. Kennedy's youngest and sole surviving son Edward euologized his father with readings from a collection of essays about the former ambassador.

"The depths of my thanks to him I cannot adequately express," said one that was written by Mrs. Rose Kennedy, Joseph's wife of 55 years, "but I should like to repeat to you what I have often said in prayer in the middle of the night as well as in the middle of the day:

"'I thank Thee, O my God, with all my heart, for all Thou hast done for me. I thank Thee especially for my husband, who with Your help has made possible so many joys and such great happiness in my life. Bless him, Dear God, and love him always and lead him to eternal life.'"

Edward's voice broke often, but each time he paused for a moment and then continued. He had served similarly before—at the funeral of his brother Robert last year in New York.

At another point during the service, John F. Kennedy Jr., 8, went to the lecturn and with his eyes closed and hands held stiffly at his sides, the son of the late President recited the 23rd Psalm.

Edward also spoke in tribute to Ann Gargan, a niece, who had been the former ambassador's almost constant companion since his crippling stroke in 1961.

The role of celebrant was filled by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston and a long-time family friend.

The rain had stopped and the sky was beginning to clear when the procession emerged from the church—St. Francis Xavier's, which the Kennedys have attended for years—and began the 80-mile drive to Brookline. Two state police cars provided an escort.

The white funeral Mass was celebrated at the request of the widow. For it, the clergy wear white vestments, rather than the traditional black or purple, and the accent is on the message of resurrection rather than mourning.

Weaver Puts MU Needs at $103 Million

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Unversity President John C. Weaver said Wednesday the school needs appropriations totaling $103,490,388 to operate its four campuses in the 1970-71 fiscal year. This is nearly $23 million more than provided in the current year.

The 20 per cent increase, Weaver said, results from higher costs of present programs, the need for new programs, higher salaries, and increased enrollment. University funds added to the appropriations would give MU a total of $146,625,496 for operations during the next fiscal year.

A breakdown of the proposed budget for the four campuses and overall administration: Columbia campus $55,987,010 in state appropriations and $80,740,623 from all sources including state funds; Kansas City campus $14,676,035 and $20,387,735; Rolla campus $11,036,823 and $15,242,060; St. Louis campus $8,165,726 and $11,964,247; university- wide operations $13,624,794 and $18,290,831. The Columbia figure includes operational cost for the medical center.

Weaver said the proposed increase in the budget would be allocated in this manner:

To meet increased enrollment, provide 8 per cent salary increases and wage adjustments, meet higher material and service costs, $16,762,240.

To improve existing programs on all campuses, $7,433,789.

To start new programs, $707,600.

The requests are based on expectation of an enrollment increase of 2,043 at all campuses in the coming year. It also includes an increase to $3,833,618 for the crippled children's service, mostly the result of higher hospital and medical costs.

The university announced earlier that it needs $50,766,000 for capital improvements next year. The legislature did not appropriate any money for new buildings this year.

The Commission on Higher Education is expected to make its estimates of the university's needs and those of the state colleges later this week. The budget director and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will be given these estimates.

Fire Destroys Steele Building

STEELE - The Geiser Chevrolet Motor Co. was destroyed by fire during the early morning early morning hours Tuesday. The cause of the fire is undetermined the Steel fire department said.

Firemen were called to the company, owned by Tony Geiser at 2:45 a.m. and got the blaze under control at 5:15 a.m.

Johnny Carter, assistant fire chief, said the building and its contents were a "total loss," however he declined the comment whether an investigation would be held. "Investigation is not in our department," he said, adding that "we don't know if the insurance company will probe the cause of fire or not."

The Pemiscot county sheriff's office said the owner of the business had filed no complaint with them, and no investigation would be made unless he did.

Losses included a new car and pickup truck which were in the display room, and a trailer truck cab which was parked in the service department. Automobiles parked outside the building reportedly received scorch damage.

Enough Funds

Although the U.S. national debt has never been actually liquidated, the Treasury had sufficient funds in 1835-36, during President Jackson's second term, to meet all outstanding indebtedness.

Lodge Steps Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge has resigned as chief U.S. peace negotiator at Paris, the White House announced today and will not be immediately replaced.

In addition, New York attorney Lawrence E. walsh also is resigning simultaneously as deputy head of the U.S. delegation at the Vietnam negotiations.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said he had no idea when a successor to Lodge would be selected. In the meantime, the acting head of the U.S. delegation will be Philip C. Habib, a career diplomat who has been Lodge's senior adviser.

The resignations of Lodge and Walsh, accepted with regret by President Nixon, became effective Dec. 8.

Ziegler was asked whether the uncertainty about when Lodge may be replaced was a calculated effort to downgrade the Paris talks.

"It's a matter of selecting a successor," he replied.

The White House made public exchanges of letters between Nixon and the two envoys in which both Lodge and Walsh complained about the posture of the Communist negotiators in Paris.

Wrote Lodge in his letter, received Wednesday:

"I strongly support your efforts to negotiate an end to the war. You have left no stone unturned. It is sad that the other side has flatly refused to reciprocate in any kind of meaninful way."

Lodge said he was quitting "because personal matters at home require my attention."

Walsh cited another reason for his decision:

"In view of the manner in which these meetings are now being conducted by the other side, no purpose would be served by my continuing to hold this office. If these conditions should change, you may be sure that I shall be glad to help in any capacity."

Linkup Reunites Astronauts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 12's moon explorers blasted off the bleak lunar surface today, chased their mother ship 3¹ ⁄₂ hours and linked up safely for the long journey home.

Charles "Pete" Conrad Jr. and Alan L. Bean, the third and fourth humans to land on the moon, skillfully guided their lunar ferry Intrepid through a series of rocket firings to catch Richard F. Gordon Jr. in the command vessel Yankee Clipper.

The two ships maneuvered into position and then gingerly moved together to lockup noseto-nosej8the first time they had been secured since Intrepid started the descent to the moon Tuesday night.

The linkup climaxed a busy day in which Conrad and Bean trekked a mile across lunar wastelands and carefully collected a treasure for science.

Conrad and Bean were to transfer into the command cabin after assembling their containers of lunar rocks and other gear they want to bring home.

Ninety minutes after they blazed away from the moon they spotted their fleeting target, the command vessel Yankee Clipper, racing about 140 miles ahead and 15 miles above them.

"I got you visually, Yankee," Conrad radioed.

"Roger," came the reply from Richard F. Gordon Jr., who has been orbiting on a lonely vigil since Intrepid started the trip down to the moon Tuesday night.

Right on schedule at 9:26 a.m. EST, a burst from the engine at the base of their cabin section vaulted Conrad and Bean off man's second lunar outpost, this one on the Ocean of Storms.

"Man, this is a hot machine," Conrad exclaimed as the tiny Intrepid blasted then off the moon after a stay of 31 hours, 32 minutes. "What a nice ride."

Seven minutes later they swept into an orbit ranging from 10 to 54 miles above the surface, 300 miles behind Gordon, orbiting at 65 miles.

An hour after liftoff, they fired their jet engines to move into an orbit at an altitude of about 50 miles. On the lower path they required less time to circle the moon and gradually closed in on their quarry, flashing through the lunar skies.

On the way up, the astronauts reported a master alarm flashed on briefly, but they could detect nothing wrong.

Conrad said he "got to watching that problem" and allowed a slight overburn of 1¹ ⁄₂ seconds, which he was able to trim out.

Conard and Bean had to catch Gordon in a 3¹ ⁄₂-hour chase to get back to earth. The lunar craft was not designed to take them home.

After executing a complex series of maneuvers, they were to hook up with the command ship at 1:05 p.m.

Conrad and Bean will transfer into the command ship and later today the astronauts plan to deliberately crash Intrepid on the moon, about 15 miles from Apollo 12's base, to excite a moonquake device left on the surface.

Then they'll spend an extra day in lunar orbit, photographing future landing sites before starting back to earth Friday. Splashdown is scheduled for 3:57 p.m. Monday in the Pacific Ocean.

Shortly before liftoff, Mission Control assessed Intrepid's systems and reported: "You're go to cast off," using a nautical term for the all-Navy crew.

"Liftoff and away we go," Conrad exclaimed as the tiny craft rocketed off the moon.

The four-legged descent stage that lowered them to the moon Wednesday served as a launching pad today and was left behind on the moon, along with five scientific instruments and unneeded boots, tools, trash and other items dumped there by the astronauts.

The moon voyagers locked themselves inside Intrepid early today after competing their second four - hour scientific safari on the cratered Ocean of Storms.

Tucked inside with them are 80 to 90 pounds of carefully documented rock samples from at least six craters, soil dug from a foot beneath the moon's surface, hundreds of photographs and five pieces clipped from an unmanned Surveyor spacecraft that soft - landed on the moon 31 months ago.

Also there was a lot of the fine black powder that adhered to Conrad and Bean as they walked the surface.

"Man, is it filthy in here," Conrad reported. "We must have 20 pounds of dirt and all kinds of junk. Al and I look like a couple of bituminous coal miners. But we're happy."

Conrad also reported that he had fallen down one time while outside. When Mission Control asked if either of them had knelt down to retrieve rocks, he replied: "I'd take the shovel and stick it in the ground and just do an arm pushup and lean down and pick a rock from the ground with my other hand. I fell over once out there and Al picked me up. It's no big deal."

He added that both did kneel at times to gather samples.

Hoover Panel Urged to End Duplication

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today called on the State Reorganization Commission to recommend the abolition of "governmental entities that have outlived their usefulness."

"I hope you can search out inefficiencies, overlapping and duplication for elimination. We all want Missourians to have full value for every tax dollar spent."

The governor's speech to the commission, Missouri's third "little Hoover Commission," was read by his press secretary, Jerry Bryan. It was the commission's second meeting.

It organized Oct. 17, choosing former Circuit Judge D.W. Gilmore, now of Kansas City, as chairman, and State Rep. H.F. (Hoot) Holland, R-Sheridan, as vice chairman. Gilmore also formerly served in the Senate.

The governor told the commission state governments are growing faster than the federal government or the general economy.

As a result, he said, "in Missouri, as well as other states, agencies have been piled upon agencies until we have built cumbersome, unworkable structures that stand in the way of attaining the state's goals.

"We are hampered in taking full advantage of technological advances such as data processing, improved communications and scienific management techniques."

He said the result is that the chief executives of too many states have direct supervision over too many agencies.

"In the case of Missouri," Hearnes said, "the lines of authority run directly to the governor from almost 90 agencies and institutions. A chief executive of the state could not confer with and supervise all those who report directly o him if he devoted all his time to it."

The governor called on the commission to recommend "far more than just organizational reshuffling."

He said the commission should consider such things as regrouping agencies in related fields, establishing lines of authority and responsibility and replacing commissions with single administrators where that would improve operations.

Hearnes said much of that could be done by executive order but some of the long range changes would have to be achieved by the Legislature.

Edward Staples, long-time director of the Missouri Public Expenditures Survey, a taxpayers' organization, agreed with the governor that the chief executive has direct control over too many agencies.

He proposed the solution that is recommended by he Council of State Governments—an administrative director who would be responsible to he governor and would direct state government operations along guidelines supplied by the governor.

Dexter Will Vote Again on Water Lines, Sewer Bond Issue Passes

DEXTER — A special election to attempt to pass a $375,000 water line extension bond issue, has been set for Dec. 16 by the city council. The action followed defeat of the issue by a four- vote 671-339 margin, in Tuesday's election.

An equal amount of sewage bonds were approved by a 664-332 count, after an official count was made by the election commission.

Mayor Willis Conners, in announcing the election date, said that five absentees votes, opened by the commissioners, all favored the sewage issue, giving it the required two thirds majority.

The water section, proposal No. two, failed because of a discrepancy in voting the mayor said.

Bad weather failed to cut down the expected 1,000 voter turnout, from a 2,000 eligible list and Mayor Conners says he believes the water proposal will be passed at the second election, "especially if we have a decent weather condition the day of the voting."

The overall election called for $750,000 to be issued in bonds, $375,000 each for sewage and water, for additions, especially to homes that had recently been taken into city.

Lebanon Caught in Squeeze

BEIRUT (AP) — Little Lebanon, with its 2.5 million people, has long known the key to survival in the explosive Middle East is strict neutrality. But maintaining that neutrality is proving difficult.

Palestinian guerrillas, bent on regaining territory held by Israel since the 1967 Arab- Israeli war, recognize their best chances for attacks against Israel are through Lebanon's southern frontier, bordering on the Jewish nation.

And Israel has made it clear that attacks launched from Lebanon bring automatic, and deadly, retaliation strikes against the neighbor to the North.

Lebanon first tasted the fury of Israeli retaliation in December of 1968, after guerrillas, who had flown from Beirut to Athens, bombed and machine-gunned an Israeli airliner in the Greek city. Israel's response was a devastating commando raid on the international airport of Beirut, all but wiping out Lebanon's fleet of commercial airplanes.

While Lebanese politicians squabbled and governments fell and were reformed, the guerrillas took advantage of the situation, operating with impunity from Lebanese soil, and as winter deepened, the guerrillas left their mountain strongholds in the northeast and penetrated further into Lebanon, occupying several villages.

Israel has charged that some 50 raids into its territory has been launched from Lebanon since last Aug. 1, and reprisal attacks increased in number and intensity.

Syria, Lebanon's neighbor to the east, has made it clear from the start that it supports the efforts of the Arab guerrillas to get back to Golan Heights territory, which it lost during the 1967 war. Recently, Syria tightened the squeeze on Lebanon by closing its border to Lebanese army troops attacking guerrilla concentrations across the border.

Adding to the pinch is the dual religious character of Lebanon. The country is about half- Christian and half- Moslem, and alliance with more militant Arab neighbors is by no means unanimously desired in Lebanon.

Although Arab guerrillas have boasted they could increase their operations within Lebanon at will, recent clashes have shown the Lebanese army is capable of rising to the occasion.

The guerrillas failed to capture the key mountain town of Rashaya, which dominates Israeli border. Although they held a major portion of the northern port city of Tripoli, and thousands of Palestinian refugees seized control of their camps, the guerrillas failed to spark the general uprising they had predicted.

Now, other Arab governments are no longer sure the battle by the guerrillas for the right to operate from Lebanon is such a good thing. A major concern is a highly visible disintegration of Arab unity.

An agreement reached with the aid of the Nasser government in Egypt finally ended the 10 days of civil strife in Lebanon, granting the guerrillas the right to operate only under certain conditions, including prior permission from the Lebanese government before significant operations.

Israel certainly was not expected to welcome the agreement, and there was some question as to whether the Arab guerrillas, if held to it strictly by the Lebanese, would honor their host's conditions.

Pentagon Says Okinawa Nuclear Base Vital to Pacific Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has told President Nixon giving up Okinawa as a nuclear base would seriously degrade the U.S. deterrent against aggression in the Pacific by such countries as Red China.

Defense officials, reporting this, say they expect some "special arrangement" to emerge from this week's discussions between Nixon and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato over Okinawa's expected reversion to Tokyo's control in 1972.

The arrangement, presumably would permit U.S. use of Okinawa—seized by the United States from Japan in World War II—as a nuclear springboard in case of extreme crisis in the Western Pacific.

An official communique reporting the result of the three days of meeting is scheduled Friday.

While the State Department wants an agreement politically acceptable to Sato's anti-nuclear opponents back home, Pentagon officials have been approaching the matter more from a strict U.S. security standpoint.

"The military significance of Okinawa would change drastically if we lost 'free use' of the island," a defense official said.

Defense officials won't talk about where nuclear weapons are stored but acknowledge that they are covered under the term "free use."

The Defense officials regard Okinawa as a "fantastic" military complex which places U.S. deterrent forces within 1,500 miles of such potentially hostile nations as Red China, North Korea, and North Vietnam.

"It is important for its deterent value, the other fellows' knowing we can use it anytime," as one official put it.

Lodge Counters Red War Crime Charges

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge told the Vietnam peace talks today that a great majority of the American people supports President Nixon's efforts for peace.

Lodge spoke after the Viet Cong angrily denounced the United States, charging that the reported American massacre of civilians in two villages of Quang Ngai Province March 1968 were only part of the story of U.S. "war crimes."

Lodge told the 43rd session of the conference that the United States is willing to consider any timetable Hanoi may wish to offer for a mutual withdrawal of all non-South Vietnamese forces.

Such a timetable could see American troops withdrawn from Vietnam more quickly than the President's "alternative plan" for pulling out U.S. forces if there is no settlement, Lodge said.

"President Nixon will not be pressured into departing from the course which he has set," Lodge warned. "Those who live in authoritarian countries should try to understand that last week's events in Washington were a demonstration of the exercise of the right of free speech. You should also understand that the evidence shows that the great majority of the American people supports the President's effort for peace."

Apollo 12 Sure to Be Top in Science Value

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With a bull's - eye landing, treasure chests full of carefully selected moonstones, pieces of sophisticated experiments deployed on the lunar surface, Apollo 12 is sure to contribute more to science than any previous space flight.

Only one major objective remains- taking close- up pictures of three possible landing sites for future missions - before astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean can head home knowing they did all they set out to do. They'll do that Friday.

Apollo 12's landing just 20 feet from the edge of a crater in which Surveyor 3 is located clears the way for future missions to more rugged terrain, where smaller safe landing zones exist but where scientists say the most knowledge can be gained.

The theory is that volcanoes or meteor impacts have tossed material from deep inside the lunar crust onto the surface in these areas. If so, rocks collected from these rugged sites could harbor numerous secrets about the moon's interior and thus possibly provide more information about the origin of the moon, the earth and the solar system.

During two excursions outside the Intrepid lander craft, Conrad and Bean collected an estimated 80 to 100 pounds of rocks far more carefully selected than those picked up on Apollo 11- including some that may have been tossed to the site when the huge crater Copernicus was created 200 miles to the north.

Knowledge to come from this treasure chest of rocks will only be learned after long months of studying the specimens, "but we're sure we'll learn something, I can tell you that," one scientist predicted.

Pieces of Surveyor 3 snipped off by Conrad will give engineers valuable information about how well man- made materials wear in the lunar environment. This type of data can prove useful in designing future spacecraft or permanent habitats to house scientists on the lunar surface.

Five scientific experiments deployed on the surface by Conrad and Bean have already begun to unravel secrets of the moon. Sources said one of them, designed to measure any gas. particles above the surface, has shown the moon may have an atmosphere one- millionth that of earth.

Data was recorded on a seismometer experiment when Conrad rolled a rock down a nearby crater, proving the device should be able to do what it is designed to do: determine the structure of the moon's interior by listening for moonquakes or sonic signals produced by falling meteors.

Demand for Flags Increases Sharply This Month in City

By DAN D. WHITTLE

The demand for Old Glory, flag stickers and flag decals has increased sharply in Sikeston this month and the overall sales for the year to date show an increase over last year.

John Vaughn, city clerk, had more than 200 decals on his desk in the city administration building this time last month. His supply has been depleted and an order is now in for additional decals.

"I had a man ask for a decal yesterday morning," Vaughn said. "I saw him again at the bank yesterday afternoon and he asked me again if I had managed to find some flags. People are really becoming actively involved and it's about time."

Vaughn told of a young man who came into his office to get a supply of decals to "give to his friends."

"He went back to where he worked and sold them to the guys there for a quarter a piece. They liked to have killed him when they found out he had gotten the things for nothing," Vaughn said.

Police are in charge of raising and lowering Old Glory each day at four locations. An officer was asked "doesn't it become a grind after awhile." His reply was "Nope." The locations are the American Legion hall, American Legion park, city administration building and the police station. The Flags generally last two to three months.

Charles Blanton III, business manager of The Daily Standard, said the sale of flags at the newspaper office this year has already surpassed last year's figure by more than a hundred. He estimated sales this year at 350.

"People want flags now," he said. "We had 32 flags in stock at the first of this month. We have already sold 19."

The manager at Woolworths estimated flag sales has increased 50 per cent or more this year compared to last. The store's supply is depleted.

The manager at Sterling estimated 24 flags have been sold there this month. About 70 flags have been sold in the store this year.

A Ben Franklin store employe estimated 10 flags have been sold there this month.

Ten who have (or had) flags displayed on their cars or in their home were interviewed this morning. They explained:

"I am for my country."

"Because I believe in it."

"I have one in my kitchen because my son demands it."

"I had a decal on my desk and someone stole it."

"I believe it is time Americans started standing up. The government we have is not ideal, but it is the best we have in the world."

"I have a Love It or Leave It sign on my car. And that's my sentiment."

"I want to be patriotic."

"To show I love my country."

"I have one on my car just for decoration."

"I think its pretty."

"I love America."

The 11th and last person interviewed this morning said:

"I have one in my heart."

Nixon, Sato Take up Economic Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's talks with Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato shifted today from Okinawa and nuclear weapons to economic differences—chiefly textiles and trade barriers.

Both leaders were under strong domestic pressures on the textile question. The United States wans Japan and other producing nations to voluntarily restrain the flow of woolen and man-made textiles entering this country.

Sato, who faces a critical election this year, wants to avoid any impression he is "buying back Okinawa" by making concessions on textiles.

A major concern of the threeday negotiations has been the return of Okinawa to Japanese control.

Authoritative sources said a joint communique to be issued Friday by the two leaders would have some carefully constructed language to get around the political dilemma.

But after Sato's return home U.S. officials expect to see some real movement from Japan at a Geneva conference on textile restraints.

The communique also is expected to cover an agreement reached by the President and prime minister at their first meeting Wednesday on the ground rules for continued U.S. bases on Okinawa after its return to Japan in 1972.

However, the communique will not make any reference to the removal of atomic devices from the island before 1972, sources say, but it was nevertheless agreed on by the two leaders during their initial meeting Wednesday.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS

The Economic Press Inc. which prints pamphlets to "educate" employes in customer relations offers this sage advice:

Many employes never meet, see, or speak to a customer from one year to the next. Some of them lose sight of the customer completely -- the only important things in their lives are their own department, their own particular jobs, and their own convenience.

They forget that the customer, in the final analysis, pays the bill for every bit of work done by everyone in their company. Each employe, by doing his job well, has an opportunity to give the customer good value for his money. If he doesn't do a good job, he gives the customer poor value.

They also forget that you don't have to meet the customer face - to - face to please or displease him. A late or mixed-up delivery, a poor typed letter, a faulty or slipshod piece of work, a mistake in billing -- things like these can make a customer a thousand miles away blow his top.

A customer - conscious employe is always a better employe. He recognizes what the business is all about.

A VISIT FROM ST. NICHOLAS

Dr. Moore's poem was originally given the title, "A Visit from St. Nicholas" but over the years it's taken on the title "The Night Before Christmas." It has been reprinted the world over every Christmas since its first printing in 1823. It is one of the most familiar poems in the language. Here it is again, as fresh in its spirit as when Dr. Moore first read it to his two daughters in the old mansion on the hill high above the Hudson, almost a century and a half ago.

---

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that Saint Nicholas soon would be there;
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar plums danced through their heads;
And mama in her 'kerchief and I in my cap
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters, and threw up the sash;
The moon on the breast of the new fallen snow,
Gave the luster of midday to objects below.
When what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little old driver so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment it must be Saint Nick.
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled and shouted, and called them by name;
"Now, Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen!
On Comet! on Cupid! on Donder and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch! To the top of the wall
Now, dash away, dash away, dash away all!"
As dry leaves that before the world hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle mount to the sky,
So up to the housetop the coursers they flew,
With the sleigh full of toys and Saint Nicholas too.
And then in a twinkling, I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head and was turning around,
Down the chimney Saint Nicholas came with a bound.
He was trimmed up with fur from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.
His eyes - how they twinkled! His dimples - how merry!
His cheecks were like roses, his nose like a cherry;
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard on his chin was as white as the snow,
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath;
He had a broad face and a little round belly
That shook, when he laughed like a bowl full of jelly,
He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf;
And I laughed, when I saw him, in spite of myself.
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head,
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work
And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose.
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they flew like a down of a thistle;
But I heard him exclaim ere he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night!"

A JIGGER OF COFFEE & A PAT OF BUTTER

The most serious food shortage in Cuba's history plagues Fidel Castro's government.

Queues at restaurants stretch to record lengths. Two weeks ago, the Cuban government announced that the island would continue on "summer time" -- the Cuban equivalent of daylight saving time - in order to conserve electricity and reduce that use of fuel oil.

Reports from Havana say it is not unusual for Cubans to wait in line eight hours for dinner or to have the door shut in their faces with the explanation that supplies have been exhausted.

Lines began growing early this year as effects of last year's severe drought showed up in the form of less fruit, vegetables, milk, beef, rice, tobacco and coffee in the markets.

In mid-March Castro ordered all state and private bars closed and drinking confined to restaurant bars. The lines grew again and moved toward a peak during the summer.

Main reason for the long lines is the continuing food shortage. But there also is a lack of almost every other consumer attraction - clothing, entertainment, appliances, automobiles and cosmetics.

Here are some examples of Cuba's ration list for eating at home:

Meat, weekly, seven ounces per person of first - class cuts and five ounces of second-class cuts; butter, two ounces per person per month; vegetable oil, one pound per person per month; fish, four ounces per person weekly - but it is not always available; coffee, 1-½ ounces per person per week - in a country where coffee is grown; chicken, one a month for persons over 65.

Many other food products are not rationed but amounts are restricted. All are expensive. In some instances a customer can buy food products only at a store where he is known.

Hotel dining rooms are restricted to serving guests, not the public Restaurant workers, under Communist prodding, work without tips, so complaints about waiting avail the customer little.

The Cuban government has an import problem. Castro says it costs the government $295 per Cuban annually for food imports - or a total of $232 million. Of this, $35.2 million goes for rice, a Cuban staple. Castro has promised that the island will no longer have to import rice after 1971 due to increased production.

The government also says it will quadruple milk production to abolish that import - $15.6 million a year - and raise the output of fish, beef, vegetables, coffee and citrus.

There was a time when Cuba was combining sugar cane and beef production - feeding Brahman and Santa Gertrudis cattle waste products from sugar production. That was before Castro, before the cattle industry was wrecked by the Communists.

One factor affecting the food supply this year has been an increase in food exports to offset the decline in sugar production. Sugar normally earns 80 percent of the country's foreign exchange.

The government reportedly is sending $2.25 million worth of meat to England this year - against none last year. Spain is to buy $1 million worth of Cuban beef in 1968.

Tons of grapefruit, limes. coffee and fruits are being shipped to Europe. In a country famous for its rums and cigars, exports have made these items just about non-existent on the island.

NEW YORK (AP) — Buying a new car may put a strain on the family budget, but it puts an even greater strain on family relationships.

Paying for the chosen chariot seems almost a minor problem compared with the complicated process of choosing it. Selection of make, model colors, type of upholstery and optional accessories can cause debates between husband and wife that threaten to outlast the Paris peace talks.

We were off to a promising start the other day when we went to visit our friendly neighborhood automobile dealer. For one thing, we undertook the mission sneakily while our daughter was at school so the arguments would be only twosided.

Then, since I don't drive, I let the family chauffeur make the big decision on what kind of car to get. But since I do ride, I wanted my say on such matters as color, inside and out, and demanded full veto power over my enthusiastic husband's choice of extras.

Once we got the color scheme picked, we got down to the real problem: What little goodies were we going to order to embellish the basic car?

"Okay," said the salesman, jotting down a deceptively low figure, "here's the price for the standard vehicle. Now, let's get down to the nitty gritty—accessories. I assume you want wheels," he added brightly.

Then he went through 17 pages of options designed to make our car a thing of beauty and a debt forever. My gadgethappy husband was in favor of all additions, from a refrigerated glove compartment to a remote control color television set, but I was a bit more realistic.

"That electronic gun to shoot coins into toll baskets," I protested. "Do we really need that? And I think we can get along without the coffee percolator that works off the cigarette lighter."

"How often do we buy a car?" demanded my profligate spouse. "You can never tell when an automatic map-folding machine might come in handy."

After we got it all totalled up, it urned out the options were the main purchase, and the car was the accessory.

But I'm not complaining. This automobile is bigger than our last one and to get it into the garage my husband will have to clean out a massive accumulation of junk—a task I haven't been able to talk him into during 5 years of nagging.

RECOGNIZING COMMUNISTS CUBA

Recently agitation has been stepped up for United States diplomatic recognition of communist Cuba.

Congressman James Haley of Florida listed three primary reasons why we should not recognize Castro's government. In the first place, recognition would imply that Castro's regime was a legitimate government. This is certainly not the case, since Castro seized power by force, has never held an election, and is not supported by the vast majority of Cuban people.

Secondly, diplomatic recognition would allow a resumption of trade relations with communist Cuba. This would greatly bolster the Cuban economy and strengthen Castro's hold on the country. Congressman Haley pointed out that this would permit Castro "to follow his announced plans of financing more revolutions in South and Central America."

Finally, Congressman Haley stated: "...the Cuban monster has made no changes in his announced plans to spread his communist doctrines far beyond his own shores..." Our government should do everything possible to prevent these plans from being carried out. Diplomatic recognition would only encourage them.

We should also note Cuba's continued hostility to our own country. One Cuban delegate to the United Nations was expelled from the U.S. recently for reasons of national security. In the words of Congressman Haley: "This is hardly behavior we should expect from a nation seeking our recognition."

Freedom in the Western Hemisphere depends to a large extent on the actions of the United States. We should do nothing which would encourage communist tyranny, and diplomatic recognition of Red Cuba would have that effect as well as strike a serious blow against freedom in Latin America.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee was gifted with a $6,000 luxury cross-country trip by jet from the nation's biggest gas transmission company.

This was shortly after his committee gave gas transmission firms a whopping loophole in the tax reform bill.

The capable Arkansas tax-bill writer was also provided with a limousine by the company, Tenneco Ine., while he was in the Los Angeles area. There he made a speech at a $20-a-plate fund-raising dinner for Rep. James C. Corman, D-Calif., a member of Mills's committee.

As Tenneco tells it, the flight was for Robert Miller, the company's Washington lobbyist, who was heading west anyway, and Mills just tagged along. But the fact is that the company flew its sofa and lounge-equipped luxury BAC-111 up from Houston specially for the flight with Mills.

Tenneco's red carpet service for the powerful chairman who holds the company's tax problems in his hand cost $6,000 based on expenses from Houston to Washington to Los Angeles and back to Washington for BAC-111 on airline runs.

Mills, his wife and the persuasive lobbyist were alone in grand style on the long flight out to the coast on Oct. 17 and back on Oct. 21. With regular seating instead of Tenneco's plush tables and lounge chairs, a BAC-111 takes about 65 passengers.

After the Mills's were whooshed the 2,310 miles to Los Angeles, Tennexo thoughtfully paid for and put at their disposal a chauffeured limousine to whisk them to and from the sumptuous Century Plaza Hotel. They flew back in the Tenneco jet after Mills made his political speech for Corman. The tax-talking lobbyist was still at the legislator's ear.

At the time of the flight, Mills already had reported out his version of the tax reform bill. But the Arkansas Democrat still maintains a life-and death hold over the measure because of coming Senate-House conferences and floor action.

Meanwhile, Mills's kindnesses to Tenneco and similar giant natural gas and oil firms is shining brightly in the House bill, to the sorrow of consumer-minded tax reformers.

For example, Tenneco and other gas transmission firms got a "pipeling sweetener" clause which lets them reap investment tax credits long after other industries begin paying through the nose. And while the public howled for an end or drastic lopping of the natural gas and oil industry's 27½ per cent depletion allowances, Mills was blithely cutting it only to 20 per cent. Tenneco, besides its gas lines, has huge gas reserves and oil holdings.

Six thousand dollars in company airplane tolls for any ordinary Congressman and a lobbyist to ride across the country and back is a good deal of money. This is especially so because there are 12 flights a day from here to Los Angeles at $354.90 first class round trip.

But a prize fish like the hard-working and powerful chairman of the Ways and Means Committee is easily worth every penny of luxury and comfort he can be persuaded to accept from a corporate giant.

This is an old aniom of the Washington game, even though the House bars any "substantial" gift to a Congressman handling bills affecting the donor.

--DRAFT REFORMS--

Behind the push for draft reforms has been a threat that President Nixon would make administrative changes if Congress failed to act. This column can now reveal that some changes will be ordered, reducing the vulnerability of young men to the draft, whether Congress acts or not.

Meeting behind closed doors with Republican congrssional leaders, the President divulged ... intention but urged his leaders to push for legislation.

"Hugh, Les, let's push it," he said, addressing Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott and House Republican Whip Les Arends.

Then he asked for a report form Secretary of Defense Mel Laird.

"Whether or not Congress acts," said Laird, "we will make changes administratively in January. But we would like statutory leave to make random selection of dates of call, changes that will reduce the vulnerability from seven years to 12 months."

--LAX AUTO SAFETY--

The motorist's protection from violations of the Federal Auto Safety Standards in 1969 and 1970 cars is about as flimsy as a Detroit fender.

While Transportation Secretary John Volpe ballyhoos the job he is doing for the American driver, an unsettling document with supporting data prepared by his safety experts tells a different story. The unpublished material shows:

Although 1970 cars came out months ago, it was only in early November that 23 cars were bought by Volpe's department for tests to see whether they comply with his safety standards.

In fact, only 21 government-owned cars altogether are being tested from the 1969 Detroit lines. It will be months before this tiny sampling is tested and the results released to the nation's drivers.

And it will be well into 1970 before the buyer of a 1970 car will know whether he's getting the safety he pays for or is driving a motorized time bomb. The report gloomily concludes that some models will never be tested while on others, the driver will have to wait two years to know whether his car was safe when he bought it.

The tests on 1968 models were finished and are being released only this month, a lag of more than two years.

MR. SILENT MAJORITY:

President Nixon's Strange Ally

Washington, D.C.: — One of the oddest couples in this chaotic capital today is Richard Nixon and George Meany. On foreign policy you can't tear them apart. On domestic policy you can't bring them together.

Mr. World Labor, as Mr. Nixon calls Mr. Meany, actually leads the President's "silent Majority." Without it Mr. Nixon's poise might not have weathered the week. Without it Mr. Nixon would not have pushed through the ABM. Without it there might not have been so many thousands of favorable telegrams after the Nov. 3 speech.

This is Washington's most spectacular phenomenon since the British lobbed shells in from the river.

Aside from the labor "crowd" few noticed, nor was it generally reported, that the strongest support for Mr. Nixon's foreign policy speech came from Mr. Meany.

"The President's candid account of negotiations -- public, private and secret -- makes it abundantly clear that responsibility for continuation of the war rests solely on those who started the war-- the North Vietnamese," said President Meany.

"It must be apparent to the enemy and to the President's critics at home that Hanoi and Hanoi alone can now signal continued hostility or peace... The President's detailed account of what he has done and is doing demonstrates that he deserves the backing of the AFL- CIO and the American public."

This has been flashed to tens of thousands of AFL- CIO labor leaders. It has had its impact. When Sen. Charles Goodell addressed a pre- Moratorium Labor Assemblage for Peace last Friday in New York, he spoke to just a handful of minor local officials well padded by shop stewards and pried loose from their jobs for the conference.

Most of them came from the old lackluster left- wing unions which have been doing business at the old stand since their pro-Soviet days of the late '40s' cold war.

But the AFL - CIO once more stood aloof from the MOBE and Moratorium. And once more made certain that not a single facility in the land was shut down. And it must be noted that, without direct and antagonistic labor action (as has been dramatically evidenced abroad), the office of America's Chief Executive cannot be shaken.

So this report becomes more than a memo on George Meany's ambivalent embrace of Dick Nixon. There is no doubt that this labor federation will try to drive Sen. Goodell from office in '70. There is no doubt that the foreign policy issue will dominate labor's decisions next year.

The signs are all here. Mr. Meany who truly is Mr. AFL-CIO, which truly is some 13.6 million tightly organized unionists, is cochairman of the Citizens Committee for Peace with Freedom. This was organized in 1967 by Mr. Meany, Gen. Eisenhower and Harry Truman among others. They dispatched a nine- man commission to Vietnam recently. A few days before the President's televised message, the Committee issued a report buttressing each of his points and concluded that a policy of U.S. troop withdrawal can succeed provided that it "take place primarily on the basis of demonstrated improvement in South Vietnamese capabilities." In other words-- no timetable, "no more Charley Goodell," they say; perhaps not even a Ted Kennedy if he has "a formidable and supportable opponent" next year.

Mr. World Labor also is cochairman of Bob Hope's Week of Unity Committee, which opposed the moratorium.

These are public postures. There have been secret meetings, such as the conference in New York's Hotel Commodore some weeks ago when an AFL— CIO committee led by Mr. Meany took on five powerful foreign labor leaders in a "dialogue" in which the basic issue was whether or not to accommodate with Communist "labor leaders" in the Soviets and satellites.

Mr. Meany's critics called him hard- nosed and inflexible. He isn't. He has a passionate hatred for foreign dictatorships-- especially the Soviets' military junta.

Some of this distaste comes from years of fighting off Communist attacks on American labor. Some of this springs from such private briefings as he and some of his colleagues received from President Nixon recently. Confidentially the President told them that during the Cuban crisis the Russians had 38 ICBMs and we had 600. Now the Soviets have 1100 SSIls and 300 SS9s-- enough to cut another canal through the U.S. on a line from the Teamsters' marble palace here to San Francisco's Civic Center.

From Mr. Nixon and Dr. Kissinger the labor leaders heard that the U.S. has had no new missiles since 1962. We still depend on the Minuteman while they are developing fantastically new powerful thermonuclear weapons. They are "testing new missiles while we drag our feet," said the President. They are producing six, possibly eight nuclear submarines a year and now have 13 in operation -- each quite deadly. The problem is not overkill, but the degree of (or the lack of) sophistication of our weapons.

It is George Meany's position that Sovietism and Maoism are the hangmen of liberalism, freedom of action and elementary progress. He believes that the survival of the labor movement depends on a free capitalism -- albeit a capitalism which must never give more and more to the millions he leads.

And that's what makes him and Mr. Nixon a very odd couple indeed. Let no one think that Mr. Meany's silent majority won't roar its way through three years of labor crises and strikes, in communications, rubber factories, electronic plants, hospitals, steel mills, municipalities and, soon enough, even federal government services.

This is truly an ambivalence but it would be regretful if it were misunderstood in Hanoi.

Fantasies, With Guilt

Dear Ann Landers: I am 31 years old, married and have two children. Three months ago I took a job as a doctor's office assistant. Although I was engaged to handle the phone and do book work, I was trained to fill in for the nurse when she is occupied or absent.

Saturday, a 19-year-old boy came in for a physical. I showed him to the examination room and asked him to undress to the waist. Evidentally he misunderstood. When I returned a few minutes later, he was completely nude. My first impulse was to tell him to put on his shorts, but for some reason I didn't. I went ahead and weighed and measured him, took is temperature and blood pressure.

He was somewhat embarrassed, but I enjoyed the situation immensely. The feelings I experienced were indecent and I am ashamed of myself. Now, the worst--several times this week I have caught myself daydreaming and hoping other young men would misunderstand the instructions.

I am happily married and can't understand what has come over me. Has something gone wrong with my mind? I am upset over this whole thing and any help you can give me would be deeply appreciated.--Hartford.

Dear Hart: Everyone has fantasies and apparently you are having some delayed adolescent dillies. Accept them as such and stop feeling guilty. R.L. Stevenson once said, "We all have thoughts and desires that would shame hell." No truer words were ever spoken.

Dear Ann Landers: Mr. K. was new in town. He presented himself to me and to my family as a well-to-do- contractor. He drove a '69 Olds, wore custom tailored suits, and had a different pair of cufflinks for every day of the week.

After a whirlwind courtship of 39 days, I married him. Now, four months later, it turns out that he left Toledo owing everybody. I have seen letters from collection agencies, lawyers, angry merchants and former colleagues from whom he borrowed money. I am afraid to answer the phone because he has run up overdue bills in local shops.

Our marriage is heading for the rocks because all we do is argue about money. I cannot respect a man who has a bad reputation and no integrity. I am also afraid that I might be held responsible for his debts. Is misrepresentation of financial status grounds for divorce? Please advise me. ---Castles Crumbled

Dear Cas: See an attorney. The laws vary from state to state. In some states, misrepresentation is grounds for annulment. And let this be a lesson to all the dolls out there who are impressed by external trappings and go husband hunting with a Geiger-counter.

Dear Ann Landerss: I went with this man for years. When I say "went with" I mean night and day, seven days a week. Whenever I mentioned marriage, he put me off. One day he told me he was not feeling well and his doctor suggested a change of scenery. "So," he said, "I found another girl."

He married the tramp within 10 days and I cried myself into a state of collapse. Two months later he phoned and said he wanted me to be his friend. I told him to drop dead. He has called every day for three weeks, begging me to take him back. He wants to divorce the girl and "go with" me again. Not MARRY, mind you, just "go with."

Is he crazy? What should I do? ----Beebe

Dear Beebe: Yes, he's crazy, and if you don't know what to do, you are crazy too.

Christmas can be a problem. What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' new book, "Truth is Stranger," is available in book stores.

Cookbook By New Madrid County Homemakers

"Favorite Recipes From People You Know" is the title of a new 93-page recipe book released by the New Madrid County Extension Homemakers' Council and it describes exactly what is contained between its covers.

The book offers 270 recipes which were submitted mostly by New Madrid County women; however, favorite recipes also were contributed by women elsewhere.

Perhaps the best known contributors are Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes, wife of Missouri's governor, and Mrs. Clarissa Start Davidson of Webster Groves, a columnist for a St. Louis daily newspaper. Mrs. Hearnes presents her recipe for Heath Bar Pie and Mrs. Davidson offers her favorite of Wine Cherry Jello Ring.

Mrs. Henry Hulshof of Portageville, president of the council, said that the best features of the book are that practically all the recipes are easy to prepare and the ingredients are ones usually found in food stores in this area. The chances of finding a recipe containing hard - to - get ingredients are almost nil, she noted.

Mrs. Hulshof said that so many recipe books on the market today include plates and dishes that only the best of cooks would dare to try.

A wide variety is offered and the index breaks down as follows: Meats, 19 recipes; casseroles, 22; vegetables, 23; salads, 29; sauces, 8; breads, 12; beverages, 7; desserts, 22; cookies, 26; pies, 21; cakes, 55; and miscellaneous items 10.

Mrs. Hulshof said that the council had been making plans for this project for more than a year. They wanted to have the books ready before Thanksgiving because this is the time of year when people start thinking about food more.

The council is comprised of 17 homemaker clubs in New Madrid County with memberships totaling about 238 members. Clubs and their presidents are: Baderville, Mrs. Y. M. Caffey, Rt. 1 Lilbourn; Busy Bee, Mrs. Robert Flowers, Rt. 1 Matthews; Canalou Community, Mrs. Dale Geske, Rt. 1 Matthews; East Gideon, Mrs. Bill Slavens, Malden; Eastern Homemaker, Mrs. Tommy Drake, Howardville;

Friendship LaForge, Mrs. Sarah Harris, Rt. 1 New Madrid; Friendship Parma, Mrs. Dan Johnson, Parma; Kewanee, Mrs. E. L. Hardin, Kewanee; Marston Goodwill, Mrs. George Washington, Rt. 1 Portageville; Matthews, Mrs. Lester King, Matthews; New Hope, Mrs. Elmer Williams, Rt. 2, Parma.

North Lilbourn Busy Bee, Mrs. Fred O'Bannon, Lilbourn; Portageville Mothers, Mrs. W. H. Moore, Portageville; Risco, Mrs. William McGee, Risco; South Lilbourn, Mrs. Mary Byerly, Lilbourn; Town and Country, Mrs. Don Mattingly, Conran; and Willing Workers, Mrs. Tisha Caldwell, Portageville.

Books are selling at $2 per copy from the various club members.

Cowboy vs. Animal

DENVER, Colo. — Professional rodeo is a two-way competition between cowboy and animal. The contestant is the first to complain that his opponent doesn't receive due recognition.

There are more than 50 stock contractors in the Rodeo Cowboys Association. These are the men who provide bucking broncs and bulls for more than 500 annual association - sanctioned rodeos.

Riders know the value of the animals they compete upon, and they speak of the various bucking characteristics with the familiarity of a major league pitcher sizing up the opposing batting order. A cowboy knows his chance of winning is greatly increased by the calibre of the animal he is to ride.

Pro rodeo reaches its annual peak at the National Finals Rodeo, set this year for Dec. 6-14 at Oklahoma City. This is showcase competition, where only the top men in the association compete. World championships are determined here.

Contestants and the association's board of directors each year observe a listing of more than 600 bulls and saddle and bareback broncs that were nominated by their owners for Finals action.

The association then makes a paring of NFR nominees. The 1969 roster includes 72 each of saddle and bareback broncs and bulls.

Heading the list is the great saddle bronc, Descent, recently voted by 1969's top 15 saddle bronc riders as Bucking Horse of the Year. This is the fourth time the big Palomino gelding, a descendant of Man O'War, has won the honor. Lynn Beutler, Elk City, Okla., placed a $10,000 value on Descent, owned by the Beutler Brothers, Vold & Cervi stock contracting group from Fowler, Colo.

There are others, such as the fine little bareback bronc, Three Bars, owned by Reg Kesler of DeWinton, Alberta, Vold's flashy brown mare, Necklace; and Red Rebel from the Harry Knight string near Fowler.

Bulls are something else. A few bull riders claim any toro is impossible to ride if it turns on full power. In that event, some bulls are always at full throttle.

Out in Oregon, take Christensen Brothers' outstanding Wilfred, or Missoula, who are but rarely ridden to the eight-second whistle. Jim Shoulders of Henryetta, Okla., has a couple of breath- takers in Tornado and Batman. Tornado was unridden in some 250 attempts until ageless Freckles Brown turned the trick at the 1967 Finals.

SEMO State Final Saturday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State College winds up a successful football campaign Saturday with a 1:30 p.m. game at Houck Stadium against Illinois State University of Normal, Ill.

The Indians would like to conclude the season with a win,if for no other reason than to partially redeem themselves before the home fans for last Saturday's 44-24 defeat by Central Missouri State College of Warrensburg.

The loss denied Southeast Missouri State its third-undisputed MIAA title in a row. The Indians, with a 7-2 overall record, share the conference crown with Northeast Missouri State of Kirksville.

The assignment to do an about- face this week promises to be tough. Tom Thrower, Southeast Missouri State head coach, said, "We think our troops will rebound pretty well for this game. We'll also be in a little better shape physically than we have been for several weeks. Most of our injured players will be ready to go again."

But Thrower adds, in the same breath, "This is probably the toughest team that we have played all season. They give a lot of scholarships, they're big, and I'm sure they will have us physically outmanned. It is going to take a tremendous effort on our part to beat them."

Illinois State, coached by Larry Bitcon, defeated Bradley University last Saturday 27-7. the Redbirds have only a 5-4 record this season, but this is misleading, according to Thrower. "They've been beaten by four of the toughest small college teams in the country," he said.

The Redbirds, according to Thrower, "play pretty straight football. They keep you from running, if they can, and in turn they try to run right over you. They like to grind it out."

Illinois State's ground attack is led by fullback Bruce Cullen, who holds several school records. Cullen, a 200- pound junior from Midlothian, Ill., and an Army veteran, has gained more than 700 yards and is averaging about four yards a carry.

One point possibly in Southeast Missouri State's favor is that the Redbirds have not won on the road all season. Another is that Indian quarterback Greg Schroeder will probably be back at full straight again.

The senior signal caller from St. Louis played most of the first half against Central Missouri State last week, but did not see action after intermission. He suffered a painful shoulder injury two weeks ago in the Indians' victory over Northeast Missouri.

Commenting on the Indians' loss to Central Missouri State, Thrower said, "We have 17 or 18 players who played well. The other three or four just sold the team out. That's all you can say."

It rained Monday and Tuesday in Cape Girardeau and an inch of snow was on the ground Wednesday. Thrower was hopeful, however, that the weather would warm up and the field would have a chance to dry out by Saturday afternoon. The Indians' running game, featuring junior Al Holmes of St. Louis, sophomore Art Miller of Kirkwood, and senior Bruce Hoffman of Park Forest, Ill., functions better on a dry field, the coach pointed out. Schroeder and Hoffman are among seven seniors who will play their last game Saturday in a Southeast Missouri State uniform. Others are Bruce Nall of Poplar Bluff, Steve Decker of Jackson, Ken Henderson of St. Louis, Ken Joggerst of Ste. Genevieve, and Larry Wicks of St. Louis.

Southeast Missouri State and Illinois State have played only twice before -- the World War II years of 1943 and 1944. The Redbirds won both games.

Tuesday Deer Kill Down...734

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri hunters shot only 734 deer Tuesday, the fifth day of the ten- day season, compared with 1,372 on the fifth day a year ago.

The kill brought the five- day total to 20,087 compared with 20,118 last year. It was the first day hunting was limited to bucks only.

Benton County continues as the top producer with a total harvest of 1,200 deer. Howell was second at 1,143, Texas was next with 1,001 and Ozark reported 920.

McCovey..NL's Most Valuable

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie McCovey, San Francisco's home run and runs batted in champion, shaded Tom Seaver, the New York Mets' ace who led the majors with 25 victories for the 1969 National League Most Valuable Player Award Thursday although each received 11 first place votes.

McCovey wound up with 265 points to Seaver's 243 in the balloting of the 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association announced by Jack Lang, secretary-treasurer. The secret vote by two committee men from each league city was taken after the season and before the playoffs and included only regular season performances. Lang tabulated the votes this week.

Hank Aaron, Atlanta outfielder who ranks No. 3 on the alltime home run list, was third with two first-place votes and 188 points. Aaron won the MVP in 1957 when the Braves were in Milwaukee. Pete Rose of Cincinnati, the two-time batting champ, was next with 127 points, followed closely by Ron Santo, Chicago's third baseman, with 124.

Tommie Agee and Cleon Jones, who play side by side in the Mets' outfield, were next. Agee had 89 points and Jones, who led the league during most of the summer, had 82 points.

Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, the winner in 1966, was eighth with 51 points, followed by Phil Niekro, Atlanta's knuckleball pitcher with 47 and Tony Perez, Cincinnati third baseman, with 28.

In addition to Aaron, and Clemente, other former MVP winner to get votes were Ernie Banks, the 1958-59 champ, 15; Maury Wills, of Los Angeles, the 1962 winner, 17; Bob Gibson of St. Louis, last year's MVP, 2, and Orlando Cepeda of Atlanta, the 1967 NVP, 1.

A total of 38 players were mentioned in the scattered voting. Last year when Gibson won he received 14 of the 20 firsts, the other six going to Rose. The committee was expanded to 24 this year because of the addition of Montreal and San Diego.

McCovey beat out Seaver with 11 firsts, nine seconds, two thirds and two fourths, the only player mentioned on all 24 ballots. Two men did not list Seaver, who received 11 firsts, four seconds, five thirds, one fourth and one fifth. Aaron was listed on 23 of the 24 ballots. Some writers confine their votes to men who play every day and do not list pitchers.

The American League's Most Valuable Player was Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins. Like McCovey, Killebrew played for a team that did not win the pennant although the Twins did take a divisional title.

Farmers Asked to Report Fescue Foot Outbreaks

COLUMBIA — George Garner, extension agricultural chemistry specialist at the University of Missouri, urges cattle producers to report outbreaks of fescue foot to their area livestock agents, agronomy agents, or veterinarians. The reports are important to UMC's research efforts to isolate the causes of the condition.

According to Garner, early symptoms of fescue foot appear first as lameness in one or both rear limbs. Front legs are rarely affected. Swelling may occur from hoff to the hock. The more serious residual effects include loss of hooves, tail switch, and ear tips.

Affected cattle will usually recover if removed from the fescue field. Cattle become gaunt but will eat if hay or grain is placed before them.

Garner says that outbreaks of fescue foot in Missouri can be expected as winter approaches and more cattle are grazed on fescue. The number of outbreaks (ranging from 21 to 28) has been relatively constant for the past three years. Survey data indicate that approximately 10 per cent of a herd is affected. A severe outbreak; however, may involve 50 per cent or more of a producer's cattle.

The specific cause of fescue foot has not been identified. Researchers are continuing their search along two lines. One is for a fungus which grows on fescue during the late fall season and sporatically at other times. The other search is aimed at chemical constituents within the fescue plant.

Fescue foot cases plotted on the map (below) indicate the geographical distribution of outbreaks in Missouri. Previous reports to workers at the Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station reveal that most outbreaks have occurred in an area bounded by a line from Kansas City to Columbia and from Columbia south to the Arkansas line. "It should be pointed out," says Garner, "that this is also an area where large acreages of fescue pasture exist."

Numerous cases are scattered throughout the state as indicated on the map. Each symbol represents a report received from county and area Extension specialist and veterinarians in the area.

66 Make Festive Breads

BENTON - In the festive breads workshops conducted in Charleston, Benton, and Poplar Bluff, 66 homemakers teamed up and made, decorated, displayed, and tasted the festive bread of their choice under the guidance of Miss Areva M. Abernathy, area home economist foods and nutrition, Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi, and Butler counties.

Their products focused on Thanksgiving and Christmas, but illustrations were discussed for Easter, anniversaries, birthdays, parties, patriotic occasions, and other special surprises. It was pointed out that more yeast doughs could be made popular for festivity rather than so many cake, cooky, or pastry type things.

The women summarized the workshop by saying that mastering the making and handling sweet dough is the secret of festive breads. To begin with, yeast must be "alive" and not killed by dissolving it in too hot water. They also concluded that in shaping doughs into the many forms for festivity "relaxing" or "resting" the dough is a must to make it handle easily or "behave" This is accomplished by letting the dough lay for 5 - 10 minutes before shaping or lifting and dropping it from time to time during shaping. And they liked the idea that all may be made ahead, frozen unfrosted in moisture - proof wrap, and thawed in wrapping.

For most festive breads basic sweet doughs are made "special" to which various combinations of spieces, nuts, candied fruits and peel, fresh fruits and their juices and peel have been added. The dough itself is soft made delicate and tender by added and varied amounts of sugar, fat and eggs over what is used in regular loaf bread. Another note of festivity is gained in the shape or form it is made into for baking and the manner and kind of decoration.

In the Holiday Fruit bread they made, the flavor of white raisins, citron, and maraschino cherries wre enhanced by the spice cardamon. The fruit bread was made more festive by being shaped into a double braid.

The Swedish Tea Ring featured dark raisins, cinnamon, and butter. Another sweet dough variation was made into a stollen to which citron, almonds, lemon rind and candied cherries were added.

A third variation was Kulich; dough baked in tall or flat cans and frosted with confectioners sugar and decorated with candies or nuts.

The children (and adults) enjoyed the Christmas tree made the zig-zagging strands of dough to form a tree. When baked many ideas for decorating it fit into the theme of any Christmas party.

Yeast dough canes were a special which the children could make and decorate.

Orange - date bread featured dried dates, fresh orange juice and peel. The doughnut was given special treatment; not to over kneed and handle the dough. A quick method of making Denish pastry was enjoyed. The most favored recipe was the Holiday Fruit Bread.

HOLIDAY FRUIT BREAD
- 2 cups milk, scalded
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon crushed or ground cardamon seed
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 cakes compressed or 2 packages granular yeast
- 1/4 cup lukewarm water
- 2 beaten eggs
- 4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup white raisins
- 1 cup shredded citron
- 1 cup drained chopped maraschino cherries
- 5 1/4 cups all-purpose flour

Combine milk, shortening, sugar, salt, spices; cook to lukewarm. (milk need not be scalded if non-fat dry milk solids have been used to make the liquid milk.) Add yeast to lukewarm water to soften. Add to milk mixture. Add eggs. Mix well. Add 4 cups all purpose flour. Knead 8 to 10 minutes or until dough is elastic and smooth. Let rise until double in bulk. Punch down and knead lightly. Let rest. Form in two (2) round loaves baked in greased 9 inch round cake pans. Or, take 1 half dough and braid either in single braid or double braid to bake on a baking sheet. Let rise until double in bulk. Bake in Moderate oven (350 degrees) about 45 minutes or until done. While warm, brush with butter or margarine, or frost braided loaf and decorate.

MOTHER'S DAY

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) Mary Towles Sasseen Wilson, a Henderson teacher, may have started observance of Mothers Day throughout the nation when she held the first celebration with her class in 1887.

Through her efforts Congress adopted it as a legal holiday. In 1926 the Kentucky Legislature proclaimed her as the idea's originater.

Ban on Leaf Burning Creates Problem Of Clogged Sewers

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) - Last month St. Louis County enacted a ban on leaf burning to cut down on air pollution. No one could foresee the outcome - clogged sewers.

"With the last heavy rain we had 40 to 50 complaints about sewers being clogged," said Jack McLaughlin, director of maintenance for the Metropolitan Sewer District.

"The people sweep the leaves into the streets, the rain carries them into the sewers, and the sewers back up."

Result sewer pollution.

Webster Groves city manager George Majors said his men are working overtime to get the sewers cleaned.

Southwest City Voters Approve Cent Sales Tax

SOUTHWEST CITY, Mo. (AP) — Southwest City voters approved a one- cent city sales tax by a vote of 94-82 in a special election Tuesday.

The total vote included five absentee ballots. The proposal required a simple majority for passage.

Mayor J. C. Adams said Southwest City is the first community in Missouri to adopt the sales tax under provisions of a new state law.

Other cities in southwest Missouri, including Neosho and Joplin, are considering local sales taxes.

A sales tax measure was defeated in St. Joseph early this month and another in Clayton lost 1,364 to 1,280 Tuesday.

Southwest City barely qualified under state law for the election. The McDonald County Municipality has a population just a few over the minimum requirement of 510.

The revenue of the Southwest City proposal which will go into effect April has not been firmly estimated.

The money, according to proponents headed by Mayor J. C. Adams, is needed for street improvements, a new fire truck and improvement of a flood control ditch.

Bill Would Require Packagers to Date Perishable Foods

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Leonard Farbstein has introduced a bill requiring packagers of perishable foods to put on the label the date after which it can not safety be used.

"The store manager should not be the only one able to recognize fresh food," said the New York Democrat, noting many stores have an internal system of coding foods with a date beyond which they will spoil if left on shelves.

The measure would allow the secretary of health, education and welfare to determine how long a food can be kept before deteriorating and require the packager to print it on the label.

They Came to Washington . . .

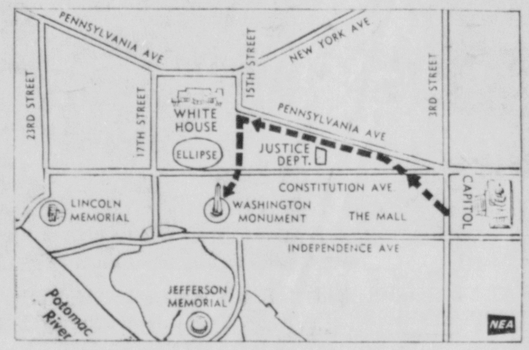
opposed by some, staunchly supported by others . . . this is how it was November 15, 1969.

ANTIWAR DEMONSTRATORS jam historic Pennsylvania Avenue between two flags —at right the stripes but hearts in place of the familiar stars and, at left, the Viet Cong banner.

THOUSANDS MASS at the foot of the Washington Monument.



Moratorium march route took the thousands of war protesters from Capitol Hill along historic Pennsylvania Avenue to within a block of the White House. Extremist demonstrators later clashed with police at the Justice Department.

AT THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT, where violence marred the peaceful day, tear gas scattered demonstrators.

THE OTHER SIDE also was heard. Opponents of the Moratorium sign a petition supporting the President's Vietnam policy.

FUTURE EAGLE'S NEST — A "Screaming Eagle" wields a swift ax as he clears the thick jungle of trees for a landing zone for another kind of "bird" near Fire Base Airborne in the A Shau Valley, Republic of Vietnam. The lumberjacking soldier is a member of A Company, 2d Battalion, 506th Infantry, 101st Airborne Division (Airmobile).

CULTIVATING INTEREST rather than land is this antique tractor. LeRoy Meade of Dewey, Okla., stands at controls of the Rumely Advance Steam Engine he is restoring. The 20,000-pound, 60-horsepower tractor has one forward and one reverse gear and is powered by steam.

RITUAL OF THE CHOPPERS. This GI really is not in the midst of a religious experience, he's merely guiding a line of helicopters landing in South Vietnam.

Death Makes Income Tax Not So Sure

Former Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, chairman of the National Committee on Tax Justice (NCTJ), has called for immediate action by Congress to end a tax subsidy that cost the American taxpayer $2.5 billion in lost revenue, a loss that benefits the wealthy few and is made up in the tax bills of most Americans.

"The plugging of this truckhole that allows $11½ billion in appreciation on assets transferred at death to permanently escape taxation is a must in this session of Congress. The Tax Reform Act of 1969 will be a sham unless Congress acts," said Mr. Douglas.

Philip M. Stern, a member of the NCTJ and the author of the Great Treasury Raid, testifing before the Senate Committee on Finance described the loophole as follows:

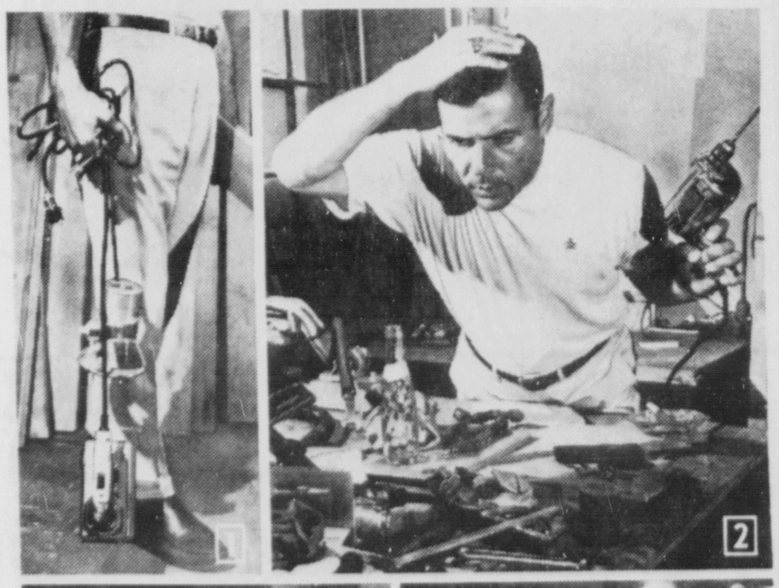
"But, of course, that isn't the whole story. I have been talking of the capital gains tax as a 25 percent tax. But for literally billions of capital gains each year, it isn't 25 percent at all. It's zero.

"For those who are patient enough (by which I really mean wealthy enough) to hold on to their appreciated properties until death, the capital gains tax is zero. By way of illustration, when I die the Xerox stock I own will be passed on to my heirs at its value at my death. That is, shares I bought at $50 that rise, say to $250 in my life will be treated, in my children's hands, as if they had been bought for $250 and all the gains that took place during my lifetime will be wiped out, for tax purposes.

"Each year, the astounding total of $11.5 billion wholly escapes capital gains tax in that matter. The annual revenue lost from that feature alone is estimated at $2.5 billion. . . ."

"The NCTJ called the correction of this defect a matter of top priority. The Tax Reform Act of 1969, passed by the House of Representatives, did not cure this abuse. The House Ways and Means Committee promised a study of the matter and a bill in this Congress.

Meaningful tax reform requires action now, Douglas said.



AFTER DOING THEIR THING outdoors this summer, do-it-yourselfers will move inside to prepare for a winter of home repairs and handicrafts. An estimated 70 million power tools will be used in home workshops, according to the Power Tool Institute, which offers these safety suggestions: 1. Never carry power tools by the cords—this can cause damage leading to a short circuit; 2. A cluttered workbench is an invitation to trouble—keep it neat and well-organized; 3. Loose clothing and dangling jewelry are hazards when working with power tools; 4. This fellow is making three mistakes: The saw is too large for the job; the work should be held in a vise and he should be wearing safety goggles.

SLIPPING AND SLIDING, individual efforts proved fruitless as each boy tried to reach prize money atop the greased pole at the Sneedville, Tenn., Old-fashioned Celebration. They finally made it by forming a human pyramid and later shared the loot.

THROUGH ANY OBSTACLE — Special Forces troops rappel from a UH-1B HUEY helicopter. The Green Berets demonstrated this technique during Brass Strike IV. When dense vegetation and rough terrain prevent helicopters from landing, troops often exit in this fashion. AUTUMN GLOW—Lush cotton velour in glowing fall colors offers the ideal combination for campus wear: stylish good looks with all the comfort of cotton. At left, a long-sleeved style with striped trim at neck and sleeves echoed in a dashing tie belt. At right, contrasting stripes parade across a short-sleeved skimmer. Both by Knitique.

LOVE ON A BIKE. Their marriage ceremony over, barefooted Michael Farr, 23, and his bride, the former Tracey Austin, 22, make their getaway on a motorcycle, leaving behind 60 hippie friends with a wild collection of guitars, flowers and beads. The wedding took place in Australia.

Hearnes Says College for All Idea Misguided

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Gov. Warren E. Hearnes is concerned about the widespread demand that college educations should be available to everyone, regardless of mental ability.

"There currently is a battle cry being sounded in our country," the governor said Tuesday "to the effect that every person has a right to a college education. That slogan has a nice ring to it, because one immediately thinks of those students who deserve to go to college but don't have the money which is needed.

"However, that all encompassing slogan embraces equally those who are unable to do college level work and those who might have the mental capacity but not the desire.

"There is a theory that this group should be accomodated by building more colleges and lowering the academic standards. I strongly disagree with that theory. It could only result in a watered-down educational system at a time when we seek the highest quality."

Hearnes outlined his views in a speech prepared to welcome members of the Steering Committee of the Education Commission of the States.

He said the states do have the obligation to provide technical or vocational education to those students not qualified for or desiring education in a first class college or university.

He said "the interests of these people and the interests of society are best served, I feel, through providing facilities for technical education. Our obligation is to develop schools which offer courses ranging from the basic manual skills through training for the operation of complex computer systems.

"Our obligation definitely is not to lower the academic standards of higher education."

Swinger Takes Risk In Hitting FBI Agent

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Knuckles worked his way to the top of a gang and became a big shot-at.Dying under a hail of bullets, he was given a lavish gangland funeral, befitting his statue, by his erstwhile associates. During the festivities, Henry, one of the "mourners" spotted a stranger in the area who was viewing the crowd with more than just a passing interest.

The result? He dimmed the stranger's view by giving him two black eyes.

The stranger, however, turned out to be an FBI agent a Henry was promptly arrested for violating a federal law that made it a crime to assault an FBI agent while on duty.

"I didn't know the guy was an agent," Henry argued in court. "If I did, I'd never have slugged him. After all, while I may be stupid, I'm not crazy."

Pleading his ignorance, Henry insisted that he be acquitted.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you free the free-swinging Henry?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when a person swings at someone, he does so at his own risk. And, if the victim happens to be an FBI aagent on duty, he's committed the crime with which Henry had been charged. The law making it a crime to assault an FBI agent on duty, concluded the judge, does not require that the attacker know that his victim is a member of the FBI (Based upon a 1964 United States Court of Appeals Decision)

'Battle of Britain' Begins at Malone

Youngsters- call them kids if you will- fought and won the epic Battle of Britain in the skies over London in 1940 - and it's youngsters, kids maybe, who made up most of the supporting cast of Harry Saltzman's spectacular renactment of that most decisive of all battles, "Battle of Britain," which United Artists, an entertainment service of Transamerica Corporation, brings to the Malone Theater today for one week in Color by Technicolor and Panavision.

Their names are in striking contrast to the stars assembled by Saltzman for key roles in his multi- million dollar spectacle. Everybody, for example, knows Harry Andrews, Michael Caine, Trevor Howard, Curt Jurgens, Ian McShane, Kenneth More, Laurence Olivier, Christopher Plummer, Nigel Patrick, Michael Redgrave, Ralph Richardson, Robert Shaw, Patrick Wymark and Susannah York who play the key roles.

But very few know of Edward Fox, Nicholas Pennell, James Cosmo, Gareth Forwood, Nicholas Tate, Alan Tuckerand and Myles Hoyle who play the young pilots. And yet, says Director Guy Hamilton, there undoubtedly are at least several names of tomorrow's stars among them. Youth, as the saying goes, will be served and Hamilton's the man to serve it.

And kids indeed they were, those pilots of the RAF rushed out of prep schools and office appreticeships in the face of the greatest threat Britain ever faced- Goering's dreaded Luftwaffe. At first they were required to fly a minimum of 150 hours before being trusted with fighting planes. But as they were brought down, over England and over the distant German air bases in ever-increasing numbers, this time was cut and cut until in some cases the kids had no more than 15 hours of training.

And yet it was to these kids that "so many were indebted by so few." They won the Battle of Britain, and according to some military experts, thus lost World War II for Adolph Hitler.

While "Battle of Britain" is an authentic re- enactment of everything that happened in that three- month struggle which commenced with the blitzing of London on July 10th 1940. James Kennaway of "Tunes of Glory" fame, with the assistance of Wilfred Greatorex wrote a tense and highly dramatic narrative against is epic canvas.

Kennedy Rites Built Around Descendants

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP)—As sheets of rain lashed this quaint Cape Cod town, the Kennedy family congregated today at the parish church to bid their patriarch—Joseph P. Kennedy—farewell.

The service, a white funeral Mass, was planned around Joseph's children and grandchildren, and only family members and close friends attended.

Afterward the body was borne by hearse to the family plot at Holyhood Cemetery in Brookline, nestled in the hills southwest of Boston, for burial.

Kennedy, father of the late President John F. Kennedy and two U.S. senators, died Tuesday after struggling with illness for eight years. A wealthy financier, he also served as U.S. ambassador to Britain from 1938 to 1940. He was 81.

The Mass was simple, with family members taking part wherever possible. Kennedy's youngest and sole surviving son Edward euologized his father with readings from a collection of essays about the former ambassador.

"The depths of my thanks to him I cannot adequately express," said one that was written by Mrs. Rose Kennedy, Joseph's wife of 55 years, "but I should like to repeat to you what I have often said in prayer in the middle of the night as well as in the middle of the day:

"'I thank Thee, O my God, with all my heart, for all Thou hast done for me. I thank Thee especially for my husband, who with Your help has made possible so many joys and such great happiness in my life. Bless him, Dear God, and love him always and lead him to eternal life.'"

Edward's voice broke often, but each time he paused for a moment and then continued. He had served similarly before—at the funeral of his brother Robert last year in New York.

At another point during the service, John F. Kennedy Jr., 8, went to the lecturn and with his eyes closed and hands held stiffly at his sides, the son of the late President recited the 23rd Psalm.

Edward also spoke in tribute to Ann Gargan, a niece, who had been the former ambassador's almost constant companion since his crippling stroke in 1961.

The role of celebrant was filled by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston and a long-time family friend.

The rain had stopped and the sky was beginning to clear when the procession emerged from the church—St. Francis Xavier's, which the Kennedys have attended for years—and began the 80-mile drive to Brookline. Two state police cars provided an escort.

The white funeral Mass was celebrated at the request of the widow. For it, the clergy wear white vestments, rather than the traditional black or purple, and the accent is on the message of resurrection rather than mourning.

Weaver Puts MU Needs at $103 Million

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Unversity President John C. Weaver said Wednesday the school needs appropriations totaling $103,490,388 to operate its four campuses in the 1970-71 fiscal year. This is nearly $23 million more than provided in the current year.

The 20 per cent increase, Weaver said, results from higher costs of present programs, the need for new programs, higher salaries, and increased enrollment. University funds added to the appropriations would give MU a total of $146,625,496 for operations during the next fiscal year.

A breakdown of the proposed budget for the four campuses and overall administration: Columbia campus $55,987,010 in state appropriations and $80,740,623 from all sources including state funds; Kansas City campus $14,676,035 and $20,387,735; Rolla campus $11,036,823 and $15,242,060; St. Louis campus $8,165,726 and $11,964,247; university- wide operations $13,624,794 and $18,290,831. The Columbia figure includes operational cost for the medical center.

Weaver said the proposed increase in the budget would be allocated in this manner:

To meet increased enrollment, provide 8 per cent salary increases and wage adjustments, meet higher material and service costs, $16,762,240.

To improve existing programs on all campuses, $7,433,789.

To start new programs, $707,600.

The requests are based on expectation of an enrollment increase of 2,043 at all campuses in the coming year. It also includes an increase to $3,833,618 for the crippled children's service, mostly the result of higher hospital and medical costs.

The university announced earlier that it needs $50,766,000 for capital improvements next year. The legislature did not appropriate any money for new buildings this year.

The Commission on Higher Education is expected to make its estimates of the university's needs and those of the state colleges later this week. The budget director and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will be given these estimates.

PARADE ATTENTION is obviously a tense business in Israel. These recruits are on review as they begin three-year active service required of all citizens.

Fire Destroys Steele Building

STEELE - The Geiser Chevrolet Motor Co. was destroyed by fire during the early morning early morning hours Tuesday. The cause of the fire is undetermined the Steel fire department said.

Firemen were called to the company, owned by Tony Geiser at 2:45 a.m. and got the blaze under control at 5:15 a.m.

Johnny Carter, assistant fire chief, said the building and its contents were a "total loss," however he declined the comment whether an investigation would be held. "Investigation is not in our department," he said, adding that "we don't know if the insurance company will probe the cause of fire or not."

The Pemiscot county sheriff's office said the owner of the business had filed no complaint with them, and no investigation would be made unless he did.

Losses included a new car and pickup truck which were in the display room, and a trailer truck cab which was parked in the service department. Automobiles parked outside the building reportedly received scorch damage.

Enough Funds

Although the U.S. national debt has never been actually liquidated, the Treasury had sufficient funds in 1835-36, during President Jackson's second term, to meet all outstanding indebtedness.
